Local Students Are Full STE(A)M Ahead
By Dr. Annette Lynch, School of Applied Human Sciences Director and Professor (Textiles and Apparel)

Earlier this month, the STEM in the Arts Urban Outreach Initiative introduced the world of science, technology, engineering, and mathematics to underrepresented junior high school girls in the Cedar Valley, many of whom participate in the YWCA of Black Hawk County's Wize Girlz program.

Located at UNI's Computer Aided Design and Textile Materials Testing Lab, this innovative fashion and arts program utilized creative concepts to impact students' lives, by helping them learn about technology through hands-on projects as well as how technology plays a role in design, fashion, and music production.

Additionally, students who attended this workshop received individualized mentoring experiences and created a one-of-a-kind sample of work, to display during the UNI Black Student Union's Fashion 4 Action Style Showcase at the Gallagher Bluedorn Performing Arts Center.

Gabriela Olivares Named UNI-NCBI Diversity Fellow

In Fall 2015, Associate Professor Gabriela Olivares (Languages and Literatures) was named the Administrative Fellow for Diversity in the Office of the Provost and Executive Vice President. Olivares helps with faculty recruitment and retention with an eye on diversity and assists with the UNI National Coalition Building Institute. Among her initiatives is the creation of new Affinity Groups serving the interests of Hispanic and Asian communities at UNI.

Inspired by her bilingual education at Santiago College in Chile, Olivares became a high school English teacher, then in graduate school developed an Increasing young women's engagement with STEM subjects can change the students' futures, by showing how the arts are intertwined with STEM via careers (such as designers and audio engineers) in fashion, music, and entertainment industries—and especially the challenging and rewarding experiences these fields offer.

Initiative partners included the UNI Textiles and Apparel Program, the YWCA, the UNI STEM Department, Design Her Life, LeaderValley™ (a subsidiary of Leader in Me™) and Infiniti Enterprises.
