Let the Demo Speak for Itself: A Perspective from the View of a Science Teacher

How do students engage with science material? How do students engage with science teachers? How many times have you been told what will happen next before you ever have a chance to see it for yourself? There are many perspectives in every classroom and successful science teaching must engage and involve all of them.

A Perspective from the View of a Science Teacher

TEACHER PERSPECTIVE

WE ARE THE CHARACTERS.

Lane gets his first Foundations of Earth Science exam back.

He got a score of 82%.

- A. Hey! A “B” is pretty good. At least I won’t get any emails.
- B. I really thought Lane knew what we were doing in class. Why did he do so poorly?
- C. Lane is always late to class and probably didn’t take time to study because of football. He should feel bad about his score.

STUDENT PERSPECTIVE

WE ARE THE CHARACTERS.

Lane gets his first Foundations of Earth Science exam back.

He got a score of 82%.

- A. Lane is ecstatic! He didn't even study. A "B" is pretty good.
- B. Lane is crushed. His mom teaches science and she will be so disappointed.
- C. Lane has a chance to look at the test. He lost a lot of points on the essay question. Now he knows where to spend more preparation time.

Leo misses class at least one day a week and when he does come, he is always late. He has not once asked for homework.

I love how Mrs. Sullivan pretends to be learning right along with us even though she already knows what's going on.

PERSPECTIVE

WE ARE THE CHARACTERS.

This is a slide title

- Here you have a list of items
- And some text
- But remember not to overload your slides with content

Your audience will listen to you or read the content, but won't do both.

Presentation design

This presentation uses the following typographies:

- Titles: Raleway ExtraBold
- Body copy: Raleway Light

You can download the fonts at

<https://www.fontsquirrel.com/fonts/raleway>

You don't need to keep this slide in your presentation. It's only here to serve you as a design guide if you need to create new slides or download the fonts to edit the presentation in PowerPoint®

SlidesCarnival icons are editable shapes.

This means that you can:

- Resize them without losing quality.
- Change fill color and opacity.
- Change line color, width and style.

Isn't that nice? :)
