cedar falls iowa

furrow this earth once, and it is not the same.
tear out the grass, plant here a doorsill on the covered grain. and roof as you will the open spaces of this plain. but bury not too much, for the earth prevails, and what goes down will stay.

dig a place for me out there between the hills. let me lie fallow against the rainwind.
stand me
long near jostling autumn poplars and freeze me rigid in this winter place.

close with our eyes together sigh and sleep too soon the night is passing proud stars pale with morning and the moon has moved into the west while with us lay love outlasting even the waning white light

(a week before april he went away) she had watched a bee crawl into the sun to dry its wet wings for a while it was content to crawl along in no particular direction until at last it flew testing it self but only to be flung back by the wind it bee-bounced to the brick floor and sat there a bit frustrated — she turning her head only for a moment lost him — suddenly he had gone and somewhere in the breeze she heard a soft buzzing (the world was sadly spring) owe me under the cornstalks what you have made me say. regret if you can that this was our only chance,

and we both forgot.
that our end is in these fields is sure, but beginnings beneath these seeds, yellow and soft corn hair we seek.

lost is not forgotten but where are the velocipedes that rode my paths. a long friend of ours has been years absent from this piece of earth, and fertile moments under the trees' tent,
have fallen since.

we came from miles to hear the truth —
janesville, oelwein, manchester, eagle center,
and waterloo.
the oracle replaced our god
BUT, we said: this fact is not the end, but the beginning.
(we memorized it from the oracle in our foxiness) and our optimism drowned us.

they sing to me
well, not to me . . .
they forget, but the sounds that reach the earth come up here humming and pounding day into night—less near morning. dependable as anything the morning and i talk over old times, sniff the dewgrass, clay
and mouldering earth.
these sing our sleep for those that are awake below
pink morninghouses
come alight inside
to beckon us asleep.
for the sake of those awake, we go.

his chamber was dispaunted all within, with sundry colours, in the which were writ infinite shapes of things dispersed thin; some such as in the worl were neuer yit, ne can deuized be of mortal wit; some daily seene, and knowen by their names, such as in idle fantasies doe flit: infernal haqs, centaurs, feendes, hippodames, apes, lions aegles, owles, fooles, louters, children, dames.

and all the chamber fill was with flyes, which buzzed all about, and made such sound, that they encombred all mens eares and eyes, like many swarmes of bees assembled round, after their hiues with honny do abound: all those were idle thoughts and fantasies, deuices, dreames, opinions unsound, shewes, visions, sooth-sayes, and phrophesies; and all that fained is, as leasing, and lies.

—circa 1570, edmund spenser the first of them could things to come foresee; the next could of things present best aduize; the third things past could keep in memoree, so that no time, not reason could arize.

but that the same could not one of these comprize. for thy the first did in the forepart sit, that nought mote hinder his quicke prejudize: he had a sharpe foresight, and working wit, that never idle was, ne one could rest a whit.

—circa 1570, edmond spenser in the morning from your window i see only the roof of the house next door but in the evening i see there the shadows of pigeons picking and walking along the shadow roof line their eyes clearly come to me and in the quiet i hear their scratch against shingles and somewhere—a flutter of wings with you walk by streams go wading naked with you blush with desire my love only the rocks know how tenderly we touch them with our bare feet

paper flowers in this the cold winter when all flowers and other spring things are seemingly dead and lie under dunes of snow take these though you can't smell them or pick them or run through them or put them into your hair you can only look at them and think of me and us and our spring-spawned love lasting even now through the bitter cold of when we're not always together
