Where Do I Find....?

The Rod is a pretty big building and it's easy to get confused. If you are looking for the Museum exhibit, Government Documents, Periodicals, Newspapers and Vending Machines, go to the 1st floor. There are plenty of booths for studying and the noise level is usually pretty low. The second floor (main floor) houses the Digital Media Hub, the Learning Commons, Reference, Circulation, MultiService Center (including Reserves) the Cafe (under construction) Assistive Technology, Technical Services, Collection Management, the Browsing Room and the Academic Learning Center on Sundays. There are plenty of collaborative study spaces, booths, and the noise level is quite high. The third floor has the Center for Excellence in Teaching and Learning, the Liberal Arts Core, the Youth Collection and Special Collections and University Archives. There are several group study rooms and there is a medium level of noise. The fourth floor has the Fine and Performing Arts collection and the Video collection. There are several group study rooms. This is the quiet floor and the only floor where you will get shushed.

Did You Know....?

The Rod is part of the Cedar Valley Library Consortium? What da heck does that mean for you? It means you can go to any of our consortium library members (Waterloo Public Library, Cedar Falls Public Library, Hawkeye Community College, and Wartburg Vogel Library) to check out material or take advantage of their awesome online resources like free music downloads, free e-books for check out, and free magazine subscriptions.

Socially Speaking

We don't want to brag or be a big shot or anything but the Rod was selected in the top 30 in the nation for Social Media Friendly College and University Libraries by Library Science List. com So, check out any of our sites (<http://www.library.uni.edu/public-relations/social-media>) to get up-to-date information about activities, events, services, and news about the Rod and beyond. #KindOfABig-Deal#NotTheSameOldShh#DateWithRod

Bash in the Stacks

On August 27th from 7-9pm during "Welcome Week" the Rod is hosting a "Bash in the Stacks." "What is this" you ask? It is an opportunity to check out the Rod, play games, get food, be loud and meet your co-panthers. Follow us on our social media for more details.
