10-20-2009

Before and After Rwanda's Genocide: Creating Memory [poster]

University of Northern Iowa. Center for Holocaust and Genocide Education.

Let us know how access to this document benefits you

Copyright ©2009 Center for Holocaust and Genocide Education, University of Northern Iowa

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.uni.edu/chge_documents

Part of the Holocaust and Genocide Studies Commons

Recommended Citation

https://scholarworks.uni.edu/chge_documents/42

This Poster is brought to you for free and open access by the Center for Holocaust and Genocide Education at UNI ScholarWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Center for Holocaust and Genocide Education Documents by an authorized administrator of UNI ScholarWorks. For more information, please contact scholarworks@uni.edu.
MEMORY IS THE FINAL stage in genocide. What are the processes by which national and individual memories are constructed? How do these memories influence justice, reconciliation, and future relationships? Memory can be the last victim in a genocide.

The UNI Holocaust and Genocide Education Program Presents

BEFORE AND AFTER RWANDA'S GENOCIDE: creating memory

A Lecture by Ellen J. Kennedy
Interim Director, Center for Holocaust and Genocide Studies, University of Minnesota
Director, Genocide Intervention Network (MN)

Tuesday, October 20, 7:00 p.m.
Curris Business Building 109