Head Coach J.D. Anderson

It's year number six for J.D. Anderson, head baseball coach at Northern Iowa.

A native of Collinsville, Ill., Anderson attended Eastern Illinois University, graduating in 1952 with a B.S. degree. He received his M.A. degree there in 1961.

J.D. opened his coaching career at Key West High School in Florida in 1956, and won state titles in 1958 and 1959. In 1961 he moved to Northern Illinois University, coaching in gymnastics, tennis and cross country.

In four years at UNI he's posted a 68-46 record with the Panthers, won one conference title, produced a Little All-America centerfielder in Rick Kriz and has been named Fifth District Coach of the Year.

Final NCC Standings

The pre-season book on Northern Iowa baseball is the same as last year's----good glove, weak bat.....

But, as J.D. Anderson has found in five years as head baseball coach, pre-season books generally have little in common with the actual season.

Last year the Panthers developed a surprisingly strong pitching staff and a handful of .300 hitters on their way to a 16-10 season and a third-place finish in the North Central Conference.

In both the batting and pitching categories the accent was on youth. Two of UNI's three all-conference players were freshmen. They were pitcher Chuck Burns, who was ranked fourth nationally with a 0.62 earned-run-average, and shortstop Tim Hackenmiller, who led the North Central Conference in five hitting categories, including hits, triples, runs-batted-in, runs and total bases.

They are the leaders, even though they're only sophomores, but Anderson doesn't expect them to be the only stars.

"We've got a strong, balanced pitching staff, and we plan on using most of them during the conference season. We won't pull anyone because he walks somebody, but neither will we hesitate to go to our bullpen frequently," said Anderson.

Bat Power Still UNI's No. 1 Need
