The Little Panther '55

Teachers College
High School
Cedar Falls, Iowa
THE LITTLE PANTHER. Three words, but three words representing the thousands of words that it would take to describe TCHS during a school year. Thousands of words that would take too much time and space, and that pictures can substitute for. So, on the next few pages you will get a pictured view, with a few words to help out, of TCHS-'54, '55 in action, sometimes sitting still and at others "goofing off" but always learning and having fun, too. The LITTLE PANTHER staff hopes you will have as much fun watching TCHS as we had being a part of it.

The Little Panther Staff

Virginia Fowler and Dick Wumkes were co-editors of THE LITTLE PANTHER with Jan Adamson as feature and art editor, Mary Taylor and Jane Fleming as class editors, Carol Heckroth, faculty editor; Sharon Thudium, business manager; and John Miller, sports and photography editor.

The PANTHER CUB was published the first semester by the journalism class, and covered all happenings in the school. The class chr at the semester, cutting the time needed for putting out a good newspaper, so the staff decided to stop.
As freshmen we entered high school with many questions, some of which were answered before the school year came to a close. Our sophomore year found us becoming better acquainted with each other and with the school—especially when we presented "Adventure Into Space," the traditional Senior Night.

During our junior year we selected our class rings and chose "Stardust" as the theme of the Junior-Senior Prom.

Our most important and busiest days came with our senior year. We chose our class colors—aquamarine and bronze, our class flower—Talisman rose, and our class motto—"What you are to be, you are now becoming." After working and saving all through high school, we took our senior trip to Chicago where we spent four educational and enjoyable days.

High school days come to a close for us with graduation on June 1, 1955.

Many and varied activities made 1955-56 a busy year for the members of the junior class. A main project was the sale of magazine subscriptions. The choice of class rings brought delight, and there was fun at the Soc Hop the group sponsored. The chili supper—an event the group has planned since... junior high days included a highly original program entitled "Say It With Music." Climax of the year was the Junior-Senior Prom held at the Commons on May 26. Seniors and other guests thronged to "Some Enchanted Evening," the theme of the delightful occasion.
A gala senior night on May 27 served as the sophomore class's farewell to the graduating seniors. It climaxd a year of fun and hard work for the group. A party and dance at the beginning of the year had helped the members become better acquainted.
A succession of pot lucks and parties followed. Perhaps the most successful event was a box social.

During the later part of the basketball season, class members sold attractive T.C.H.S. pennants to add more pennies to class coffers.
Even some of the major tasks in Melody Moods were performed by talented freshmen.

Aware that it is but a short time until the senior trip will roll around, industrious members worked hard to pile money in the class treasury. (Well, didn't a super-salesman sell you a Christmas wreath?)
No longer classed as junior high schoolers, the members of the freshman class entered in September but did not wait until June to let the rest of the school know that they were well-fortified with pep and bounce.

Every sport, dramatic or athletic activity found the ninth grade well-represented.
School had just started in September when members of this class hopped into buses and started for Camp TeCoHi. There they enjoyed four days of work and pleasure.
Many and varied class parties provided plenty of good times for this fun-loving group throughout the year. A well-planned picnic initiated Spring.

A fitting climax for their year was a trip to many of the scenic and interesting points in northeastern Iowa and southern Wisconsin.
The seventh graders did not wait long to let upper-classmen sense their presence. An active, fun-loving—but industrious—group, they soon took their share of the responsibility of making ours a happy, friendly school.

Their social event, centered around class parties, helped to join the class together as a unit.
Money already has been earned which will start them on their senior trip.

A warm May day found the class boarding a bus for Devil's Backbone State Park where—with supervisors and student teachers—they applied knowledge they had learned in natural science units.

The Basketball squad experienced a disappointing season this year. However, much progress was made during the season. At the beginning we were beaten by forty points. But at the end, it was only a matter of a few points. The squad earned itself the reputation of not giving up when it was behind.

There were many shows produced by TCHS this year. "I Remember Mama," the story of a family from Norway and their life in the U.S. was a high school version of the play given on Broadway a few years ago. It was presented November 19, 1954.
"Why the Chimes Rang" was an adaption of the book of the same name by Raymond Alden, and was given along with the Christmas Choral Concert just before Christmas vacation. The program was very effective, featuring Christmas religiously.

The seniors' trip to Chicago this year was educational and a lot of fun too, as these snaps show. The girls' bus wasn't very crowded—{}that's Elda Refshauge's elbow sticking down out of the rafters in the upper right hand corner. Erika Pitzman and Marcella Damgaard seem to be enjoying someone on that phone. Carol and Colleen Kirk and Dick Wumkes are looking at one of the many statues in the Museum of Natural History. And there's Carol Hof squeezing her suitcase together for an appropriate close to a wonderful trip.

"Some Enchanted Evening" was the theme of this year's Junior-Senior Prom held in the Commons. Mr. Maricle is shown at the banquet giving his speech after the welcome and response by Bob Rice and Mary Taylor, respectively, and preceding the presentation of the Ladder of Success by Bill Joslyn to Jack Dodd. After Dinner there was dancing against this background of an island in the South Pacific. Barb Fossum, Dale Poppy, Carol Heckroth, and Bill Joslyn are shown here. At the intermission, the May Queen, Carol Heckroth, was announced, followed by more dancing to make a very enchanting memory for the seniors.
