Contributors

Lynn A Brant is Emeritus Professor of Geology, having retired in 2007 after teaching in the Earth Science Department at UNI for 25 years. Prior to that, he worked in state government on environmental issues and served for three years as an intelligence officer in the U.S. Navy.

Francis Degnin is an Associate Professor of Philosophy at the University of Northern Iowa. He specializes in Medical and Clinical Ethics. In addition to teaching and research, he consults and teaches within the healthcare community. His additional academic interests include Continental Thought and Humanities.

Catherine DeSoto is an Associate Professor of Psychology at the University of Northern Iowa. Her current research projects involve direct measurement of hormone levels via immunoassay and how this relates to behavioral tendencies as well as investigations into how exposure to toxins relates to neurodevelopmental disorders.

Joel Haack is the Dean of the College of Natural Sciences and a Professor of Mathematics at the University of Northern Iowa. He has been active in the history of mathematics community and pursues connections between mathematics and the arts and humanities.

Robert T. Hitlan is an Associate Professor of Psychology at the University of Northern Iowa. His research interests include the antecedents and consequences of workplace stressors. Two primary areas of interest include social ostracism and harassment including sexual, ethnic, and bystander harassment experiences.

Kimberly MacLin is an Associate Professor of Psychology at the University of Northern Iowa. Her research interests include racial categorization and criminal stereotypes.

Otto H. MacLin is an Associate Professor of Psychology at the University of Northern Iowa. His research interests include cognitive and metacognitive aspects of face recognition as well as applied aspects of face recognition such as eyewitness identification.

Paul Siddens III is an Associate Professor in the Department of Communication Studies and Faculty Designer and Technical Director for the UNI Interpreters Theatre performance and production program. He is professionally trained and experienced in virtually all aspects of technical theatre and as an arts administrator, producer, director, writer, adapter, and actor.

Alan Schmitz is Professor of Theory and Composition and Associate Director of the School of Music for Undergraduate Studies at the University of Northern Iowa. His music is widely performed in the United States and has also been presented in Western Europe, Romania, and Russia.
John E. Williams is an Associate Professor of Psychology at the University of Northern Iowa. His research interests include the areas of psychological assessment, reliability and validity of assessment instruments, and computerized applications in psychology. Specific research focuses on computer-based test interpretations for personality assessment inventories.

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivatives 4.0 International License.