STATE COLLEGE OF IOWA, CEDAR FALLS, IOWA

David L. Fagle, B.A. '55 and M.A. '56, Marshalltown teacher, was named 1965 Iowa Teacher of the Year.

Marshalltown Alumnus Is Iowa Teacher of the Year

A Marshalltown man who lives his profession 12 months of the year, David L. Fagle, B.A. '55 and M.A. '56 is the Iowa Teacher of the Year for 1965.

A biology teacher at Marshalltown High School and instructor and department head at Marshalltown Community College, Fagle was named for the honor March 17 by the State Board of Public Instruction. He was also entered in the competition for National Teacher of the Year.

Fagle believes that only through continuing study can one keep abreast of the flow of knowledge in modern society. New ideas, methods and techniques that will influence teaching must continually be sought out, he said. Because of this, he has enrolled in college or taught in college every summer since graduation.

Fagle has written numerous articles in educational periodicals and is co-author of a high school biology textbook.

While at SCI, he received an award in 1953 as the Outstanding Chemistry Student, and the Old Gold Award for outstanding scholarship.

He lives up to his belief that "professional organizations need dynamic people. . . to keep them moving forward". He lists membership in several national and state science and education associations.

Fagle has been president of the Iowa Science Teachers Association and several of his students have had superior placements in state and national Science Fairs.

A native of Cedar Rapids, he started his teaching career in Knoxville High School in 1956. The next year he joined the Marshalltown school system and has been there since.

Mrs. Fagle is a registered nurse in the Marshalltown school system.

SCI Helps Initiate 'Electronic' Blackboard

Dial 'M' for Modern Mathematics

A new device for teaching modern mathematics to parents and teachers has been used for the first time in the United States in an eight-week in-service training program this semester at SCI.

A mathematics professor, sitting alone in his small office in the Price Laboratory School, gave lessons in modern mathematics—complete with diagrams—to approximately 2,500 teachers and parents in seven northwest Iowa communities during February and March.

George Immerzeel, assistant professor of teaching at SCI, handled his large and distant classes through an "electrowriter," which sends and receives handwritten messages and diagrams simultaneously with voices over an ordinary telephone connection.

Immerzeel was graduated from SCI in 1948 with a bachelor's degree in mathematics and received his master's degree in the same field in 1956.

More than 480 teachers and 2,000 parents from Lyon, Osceola, Sioux and O'Brien counties participated in the program known as the "Northwest Iowa Electronic Blackboard Project."

During classes, the instructor's voice was received instantaneously in seven receiving centers while written diagrams appeared on a large projector, designed especially for the project. Class members were able to ask questions, receive immediate answers and return diagrams or written messages to the instructor.

Teachers and parents met in Orange City, Rock Valley, Hawarden, Primghar, Sheldon, Sibley and Rock Rapids. Although 18 school systems were involved, no one in the project area had to travel more than 20 miles to a receiving center, said Immerzeel.

Some of the lessons were transmitted to northwest Iowa from the University of Illinois, Urbana, and Chicago. Opening sessions for teachers were conducted by experts from Purdue University and the University of Chicago. Immerzeel conducted the remaining teacher sessions and all of the parent sessions.

New instructional materials for the parent course have been prepared by Immerzeel and Donald Wiederanders, SCI assistant professor of teaching. Called "Parents Discover Modern Mathematics," the materials will be published by the Encyclopaedia Britannica Press.

The experimental program will cost approximately $21,000 — or about 1/50 of the cost of educational television, says Immerzeel. Costs include rental of the electrowriter equipment from the Victor Comptometer Corporation and leasing of two telephone wires from Northwestern Bell Telephone Company.

The program is financed by northwest

State College of Iowa

Iowa local and county school districts, a $12,800 grant from the Fund for Advancement of Education of the Ford Foundation and the Iowa State Department of Public Instruction, using funds authorized by the National Defense Education Act. The Encyclopaedia Britannica provided the instructor's salaries.

While the electrowriter could be adapted for teaching many types of courses, the most pressing need is in modern mathematics, said Immerzeel.

Two-thirds of the nation's schools have adopted "new" or "modern" mathematics in the past dozen years. He said it has been estimated that 70 per cent of Iowa schools are involved in modern mathematics programs.

Most parents accept modern math as an improvement, but seem to feel inadequate in the face of new terminology and teaching methods. Immerzeel feels that most parents in the "Electronic Blackboard Project" will discover the new math is not so unfathomable as they had imagined.

"It is even more important to instruct teachers in the new math. Many teachers of lower elementary grades may not have had a formal course in mathematics since high school," Immerzeel said. He added that summer schools are unable to accommodate all returning math teachers, and regular extension courses can't reach everyone.

"I don't expect use of the electrowriter to be as effective in teaching as personal contact, but it will allow a transferral of a great deal of content material to greater numbers of people than ever before," he said.

"The electrowriter has vast possibilities for classes other than math, but plans in the hopper will depend on success of the Blackboard project," Immerzeel said. The University of Iowa, using questionnaire and content tests given to participating teachers, is evaluating the project.

"We're expecting visits by many out-of-state educators interested in using the electrowriter in their schools," Immerzeel said. "This is something that is going to catch on."

Latham Premiers New Band Work

Dr. William P. Latham, professor of music theory and composition at SCI, conducted the world premiere of his most recent composition for concert band April 3 at the 1965 Mid-American Intercollegiate Band (MAIB) meeting in Cedar Rapids.

Performed by the MAIB band, composed of selected student musicians from 13 participating colleges and universities in Iowa, Illinois and Minnesota, the three-movement work is entitled "Escapades."

Dr. Latham, who is widely recognized as a composer of outstanding works for choir, orchestra and band, was especially commissioned by the MAIB to create "Escapades."

A member of the SCI music department since 1946, Dr. Latham commented: "I think the title is appropriate because the work is high-spirited. In that sense it's a tribute to the exuberance of our college youth."

Dr. Latham's other commissioned works include a cantata, "Blind With Rainbows," "Passacaglia and Fuge for Band," and "Te Deum."

Mrs. Latham, also an accomplished musician, did the instrumental scoring for her husband's composition.

Careful Departmental Planning to:

Develop 'Artist-Teacher' Concept

Art is a personal thing, demanding of the artist deep introspection and a certain amount of self concern or turning inward. Teaching, though equally demanding, calls for active involvement in the lives of others.

While art and teaching are not diametrically opposed, combining them to suit the needs of SCI students has meant careful thought and planning on the part of the college art department.

Since its creation in 1948, the department staff and chairman, Dr. Harry G. Guillaume, have revised and expanded the curriculum to bring into play an "artist teacher" concept.

This concept, Dr. Guillaume explains, is a balance between the professional preparation of a teacher based on the needs of Iowa's children and the personal needs of the teacher as a practicing, creative artist.

"We offer students experiences in many art areas and at the same time permit and encourage some concentration in one area in which the student can become proficient as an artist."

The department philosophy is indicated by a flexibility in curriculum giving greater freedom of choice for students. The art major may take 39 hours in art with a minor in another field or may take 48 hours without a separate minor. Non-teaching programs in art are also offered as well as a master's degree program. The M.A. program takes into consideration the art student's need for freedom in developing individual creativity. No specific courses are required unless the student is preparing for a supervisory position in school systems.

The art department developed as a separate branch of the former department of arts (art and industrial arts). Seven staff members and 39 art majors were located on the top floor of what is now Wright Hall. After a crowded year, the department moved in 1949 to the second floor of the then new Arts and Industries building. An addition to the building in 1961 provided classroom space to keep pace with the department's growing number of majors—160 this year.

 (1) Art programs are designed to give students broad backgrounds in many areas, from ceramics to painting, yet allow the student to develop personal specialities. (2) Dr. Harry H. Guillaume has been head of the department since its beginning in 1948. (3) Don Finegan is among several art faculty who have contributed major works to the campus. "Tribute to the Arts," shown here, now stands before the Music Hall. (4) Miss Marjorie Campbell explains a facet of her "Campbell Collects" exhibition to students. Exhibits by art faculty are held throughout the year.

But the department has a far greater sphere of influence than its own majors. As one of three general education classes at SCI, the course Man and Materials has introduced art to hundreds of non-art students.

The department-sponsored art fair for high schools, in its 10th year, draws 500 students to the campus each spring to exhibit their work, receive constructive critiques and compete for scholarships. The 1965 art fair was held April 23-24.

In 1952, the department started SCI's permanent art collection which now contains 172 original works including Philip Guston's "No. 6" which toured Europe as part of a Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation exhibit.

A very active exhibition program in the A&I Gallery includes both traveling exhibits from art agencies and SCI faculty and student exhibits. SCI also makes three traveling exhibits available free of charge to Iowa public schools.

Summer sessions, never a slack time for any department, are especially busy for the art department which for the past nine years has hosted prominent visiting artists. Noted Japanese-American print-maker Ansei Uchima will be guest artist at SCI this summer.

Another summer activity in final planning stages is the first summer art institute for high school students ever held in Iowa. The institute, Aug. 8-15, will provide art experiences for students with the aim to discover and encourage talent.

The art faculty has brought credit to SCI in several ways. Offices in national and state art associations are held by Dr. Guillaume, Clifford Herrold and Paul Smith. Almost all staff members have been active on national, regional and state committees as well as participants at conferences and organizations at all levels.

Most staff members have been represented in national and regional exhibits and are represented in major galleries.

Staff art works enhancing the campus include Don Finegan's bronze and fiber glass sculpture, "Tribute to the Arts," which stands before the Music Hall, Ralph Haskell's symbolic sculpture in the stairwell of the new library and David Delafield's design for the bandshell.

The SCI art faculty not only developed the "artists-teacher" concept for students, they exemplify it themselves.

Senior Bill Bergan and track coach Jack Jennett are not only camera conscious . . . they're victory conscious. Bergan, co-captain of the track team, was also captain of SCI's great cross country team that went undefeated in eight dual matches, won the NCC title and finished third in the national meet.

SCI Winter Sports Have Ups and Downs

Craig Knepe, junior center from Parkersburg, became the North Central Conference's most valuable player, scoring champion and Associated Press honorable mention Little All-America cager to provide the biggest news on the winter sports scene at SCI.

Knepe, one of three Panther cagers to make the NCC all-conference team, led his team to a 16-7 season record, finishing the season in a flurry of victories that brought 11 wins in the last 12 games, seven in a row at the end, and a second place finish in the NCC.

The 6-5 sharpshooter led all SCI scorers with 459 points and a 19.9 per game average. He's totaled 805 points in two seasons and needs 434 next season to tie Pete Spoden's career high of 1,239.

Seniors Ron Jessen and Jerry McColley were also named to the all-conference team, Jessen for the second straight year. McColley scored 350 points on the year and set a new school mark at 23 for consecutive free throws made.

Jessen scored 339 points to run his career total to 926, sixth best in school history. He also set free throw records, hitting 18 in one game and 17 straight in one game. Knepe tallied 16 field goals in a single game for the other school record.

Coach Chuck Patten's wrestling team was not so fortunate, finishing with a 2-8-1 dual record and a record for matmen lost through injury. The Panthers finished second in the NCC with 177-pound sophomore Don Parker and senior heavyweight Larry Straw winning individual titles.

Straw, hurt much of the year, scored two fast pins, one in 39 seconds for the title, to take some of the sting out of the South Dakota State team victory.

Parker and Straw both won their first matches in the NCAA College Division tournament at Colorado School of Mines but failed to finish in the top four in their respective divisions.

Jack Jennett's indoor track team with hurdler Ron Gerard and jumping-jack Bill Rauhauser leading the way scored big wins in all but two encounters. The Panthers lost to Mankato State and Iowa State.

Gerard, a junior college transfer from Mason City, lost but one hurdle race prior to the NCC Indoor meet (run after press time). Rauhauser, a sophomore from Ruthven, set and reset the stadium triple jump mark, completely dominating the event most of the season.

And Back to Football

Spring football practice opened April 5 for the State College of Iowa's defending Pecan Bowl champions and Coach Stan Sheriff had 13 lettermen returning headed by guard Ken Beverlin, center Doug Korver, ends Ted McPherson, and Del Hammond, and backs Loren Buser and Little All-America Randy Schultz.

The 1965 football schedule:

Sept. 11 Northern Michigan, here, 7:30 p.m.

Sept. 18 at Southern Illinois

Sept. 25 at North Dakota State

Oct. 2 North Dakota U., here, 7:30 p.m.

Oct. 9 at Drake University

Drama Troupe Tours State

Eight drama students at the State College of Iowa set out to prove to Iowa high school students this spring that Shakespeare "can be fun."

The college actors, sponsored by the SCI speech department, took a 10-day tour of Iowa communities Mar. 26 through Apr. 11 in a performance of "The Many Faces of Shakespeare."

Productions were given at Cresco, Maquoketa, Mount Pleasant, Cedar Rapids, Wartburg College, Iowa State University, Waterloo and Ft. Madison Penitentiary.

The play was directed by graduate student Thomas Peter Johnson of Fort Dodge as part of a thesis project under the supervision of Stanley Wood, director of theatre. A combination of scenes from the plays of William Shakespeare, it shows the many moods and emotions of Shakespeare's works—from tragedy to farce.

"For years, many students have thought Shakespeare hard to understand and appreciate," said Johnson. "It is our group's purpose to show that he cannot only be understood, but can be fun, enjoyable, and can provide modern Americans with some of the best entertainment available."

The tour cast and crew traveled with their own lights, props, set, and costumes, fitting rather snugly into one station wagon.

The Week That Was

That was the week that was! was the general consensus of SCI'ans after a busy week of activities March 8 through 13.

The campus was unusually alive March 12 and 13 as approximately 1,250 visiting high school and college students arrived for four conferences.

Some 750 Iowa high school science students attended sessions of the second annual SCI Science Symposium. Lectures by eight noted scientists, film showings and demonstrations highlighted the conference theme of "Energy."

Another 200 high school students played the roles of United Nations delegates at the first annual Iowa High School Model United Nations. The Model U.N. realistically represented the meetings and procedures of the United Nations, with students themselves involved in the problems and power politics of that body.

Approximately 50 students from eight Iowa colleges and junior colleges attended the second annual two-day SCI Journalism Conference. Keynote speaker was Charles A. Grumich, night supervisor of the Associated Press New York foreign desk.

The final session of the 10th annual Tallcorn Music Conference was the clinic on orchestra and strings on March 13 attended by 200 high school musicians. The program featured a concert by the SCI Symphony Orchestra and the high school string orchestra with noted violinist Josef Gingold as soloist.

Name New Regents Dormitory

The State Board of Regents, meeting in Des Moines March 12, named the newest addition to SCI's dormitories after Waverly attorney, Harry H. Hagemann. Hagemann served two six-year terms on the Board following his appointment in 1951. He was Board president from 1957 to 1963. The dormitory is Unit III of the Regents complex, located south of 27th Street, and will house 400 women when it is completed in September.

Hagemann was born in 1900 on a farm in Black Hawk County, attended Waterloo public schools, SCI, Iowa State University and Georgetown University.

He served in the U.S. Navy during World War I, and since 1927 has practiced law in Waverly as a member of the firm of Hagemann & Hagemann.

Woodrow Wilson Scholar

Senior Margaret C. Trieschman of Ida Grove was named recipient of one of 1,395 Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation graduate study fellowships awarded for the 1965-66 academic year. Miss Trieschman, an English major, plans to do graduate work in comparative literature at the University of Michigan.

New Editor Named for 'Eye'

Phil Pirages, junior English major from Cedar Falls, has been named executive editor of the campus newspaper, "The College Eye," for the last half of the current semester. Pirages was named to replace Larry Park of Ventura, who resigned to do student teaching.

High school students assumed the roles of United Nations delegates during the Model UN at SCI.

Josef Fox: 'Favorite Prof'

Dr. Josef Fox, SCI professor of English, was elected "Favorite Prof" by an all-campus male vote March 10. The election was part of Men's Union Week at SCI.

Other events during "the week that was" included a memorial program for Nobel prize-winning poet T. S. Eliot who died Jan. 4, sponsored by the English and speech faculties, and a benefit auction to raise $1,500 for the International Student Fund at SCI and SCI Peace Corps Volunteers.

Students Elect Officers

In the all-campus student government elections March 19, Dan Jorgensen, science teaching major from Audubon, was named student body president by a vote of 1,084 to 1,065. In the election, SCI students also passed an amendment to the Student League Board constitution, changing the name of that body to Student Senate. Named as presidents of the other two top governing bodies were Dianne Akers, biology teaching major from Coggon, Iowa, president of Associated Women Students, and Gary Reid, mathematics teaching major from Dubuque, president of Men's Union.

Musical Notes and News

The SCI Concert Band, under the direction of Dr. Karl M. Holvik, has been invited to appear at the annual convention of the Iowa Bandmaster's Association meeting in Mason City May 27-29. Their concert will include "Escapades, a Suite for Concert Band," conducted by its composer, Dr. William P. Latham. Dr. Joyce Gault, assistant professor of music, will be featured as piano soloist in "Variations on a Nursery Rhyme" by Ernst Dohnanyi.

The annual SCI Pops Concert March 21 included a program varied from Sibelius to John Philip Sousa. During the concert, contributions were accepted in an effort to raise $100 for the Sousa Memorial, a major portion of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, to be built in Washington, D.C. The contribution would enable SCI's name to be recorded on a bronze plaque in the memorial.

"To Be an Individual . . ."

"To be an individual, one must relate to the world and have a love for it," Dr. Dorothy Lee, noted Harvard University anthropologist, told SCI students March 15 at the winter convocation.

Dr. Lee, speaking on "The American Student and His Search for Individuality," said, "We are living in a society which does not teach us to be an individual."

It takes strength to be yourself and to relate to the entire world, she said, and an individual must "take a stand," even if it involves an unpopular issue.

'Electra' Is Success

One of the greatest plays of classic Greek theater, Sophocles' "Electra," was staged March 18-20 by the SCI Theater staff. The production, very well received, combined ancient and modern theatrical traditions to give the play the "bigger-than-life quality of mythology found in all Greek plays," said Stanley Wood, director of the play. Unusual features of the performance included the use of face masks for characters, as was done in performances in ancient Greece, special music composed by James Coffin, instructor in music, and choreography by Barbara Darling, director of the SCI Orchestris modern dance group.

Series Provides Culture

The campus was alive with cultural activity during February and March, as the three final programs in the current Artists Series featured musical performances. The Houston Symphony, conducted by "artistic volcano" Sir John Barbirolli, played numbers in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Finnish composer Jean Sibelius, during its program Feb. 24.

British lute and guitar player Julian Bream played a virtuoso program of music from Elizabethan to the contemporary periods March 4 and 5. The Gregg Smith Singers, a choral group with "a twentieth-century sound," appeared in the final Series program March 22 and 23.

Win Washington Trip

Two SCI'ans are among 16 Iowa college students to win trips to Washington, D.C. under the "Week in Washington" program sponsored by the Iowa Center for Education in Politics. Linda Kay Arnborg, a junior from Atlantic, and Merle O. Davis, a junior from Fort Dodge, will attend sessions of Congress and committee hearings, visit national political party headquarters and meet government officials during their trip this spring.

Maucker, Lang on TV

President Maucker and Dean of Instruction William C. Lang have become familiar to Sunday afternoon television viewers in the Cedar Falls-Waterloo area through a KWWL-TV program "College-Close-Up."

The 15-minute program each Sunday at 4 p.m. is a dialogue on issues and trends in higher education with relevance or application to SCI.

Topics in the series have included the expanding needs of higher education, specific legislative requests for general operating funds, the SCI Model United Nations, admissions policies, who should go to college and staffing.

Other staff members who have appeared on the program were Dr. H. W. Reninger, George Poage and Jack Wielenga.

President Maucker and Dean William Lang are appearing in a Sunday television series.

SCI as it appeared "after 1902" when the institution was still Iowa State Normal School (or at least as it appeared through a convex camera lens). Buildings, starting at the left, are Administration, the Crossroads and the Auditorium. Most noticeable changes today are probably much shorter skirts and much taller elms.

Memories Gather as Reunions Near

by Mrs. Joy Schacht

(with thanks to Miss Mary Dieterich of the SCI Archives)

Returning alumni of the classes of 1905, 1915, 1925, and 1940 who will be honored during Alumni-Faculty Reunion Days, May 29-30, may not recognize the campus of the State College of Iowa in its 1965 attire.

As they tread the well-remembered paths of their college years, perhaps they will dip back into memories of other times, other faces—other eras.

Floor-Sweeping Dresses of 1905

Dresses swept the floor and grazed the ears in 1905 when SCI was still the Iowa State Normal School with an "excellent faculty of more than 65 members" (mentored by President Homer H. Seerley), an enrollment of nearly 1,000 students, a library containing 17,800 volumes, and legislative askings totaling $37,000.

Articles and ads in the 1905-06 Normal Eye (now the College Eye) reflect a leisurely, scholarly campus atmosphere, revolving around philosophical and literary society activities.

Highlights of the Normalites' year was the Annual Commencement Society Parade. Men and women debated such burning issues of the day as "Resolved, that the influence of the Russian-Japanese war was more for good than evil."

All was not serious business, however.

The Neotrophian society one Saturday evening responded to roll call by giving reasons for being old maids.

Sorority hazing must have been rather strenuous for the delicate young ladies of Nu Omicron Nu. The Normal Eye reports:

"Last week the Nu Omicron Nu's initiated into the mysteries of their order Margaret Bowes and Madge Ellsworth. All that day to classes the girls were forced to carry little boxes of fishworms and to wear a red skull and cross bones. . . after night the girls were blindfolded, led around town and forced to climb telephone poles, ring doorbells. . ."

Another Normal Eye reporter complains about the lack of volunteers for forensic contests.

But Macy Campbell, coached by Frank D. Eaman, was awarded first honors at the Interstate Oratorical Contest in Milwaukee, Wis., and Normal won its first debate with Drake.

The football schedule that fall included games with Waterloo High School, Ames, Industrial School, Cornell, Iowa, Coe, Penn, and Memorial. The Normalites defeated Iowa, 11-5.

Star gridiron athletes were coached by Charles "Doc" Pell.

Betting on the Iowa-Ames game was soundly denounced by an indignant Normal Eye editorial.

George Wallace was Normal's champion

try a pure cold Sundae from our new 'Innovation Soda Fountain.' Or maybe couples strolled along the Cedar River, where "the bridge. . . is an exquisite place for viewing the moon at midnight."

The first yearbook of the school, published in 1905, pictures "Faithful Dick," the old sorrel horse who at 16 was still pulling Mr. Charlie Bley in his "little mail cart."

The Normal Eyte Annual observes that the Mandolin Club. . . "has grown until it has reached its present state of perfection and little more can be desired either in the quality and quantity of its music. . ." Mr. Fitzgerald led the group.

As seniors left the campus to teach, Clark's Dray Line hauled their baggage to the depot. H. G. Martin, a 1905 alumnus, enjoyed bear steak for supper "about twice a week" in Brainerd, Minn., where he headed the high school's commercial department.

1915: Sunday Dinner for 35 cents

By 1915 the library, vocational, and auditorium buildings had been added to the campus, 322 teachers were graduated from Iowa State Teachers College, and students could treat visitors to Sunday dinner for 35 cents at Overgaard's Bakery and Dining Room.

Coach Allen "Berk" Berkstresser was "fearfully handicapped this year by being compelled to whip raw-green material into 'first-team' stuff."

A "pepperfest" was planned to launch the campaign for the new Campanile that tennis player, but "there were no ladies' singles or doubles this spring owing to lack of room for practice." And the new gymnasium (present-day Women's Gym) opened in the fall of 1904, with "a swimming pool large enough for a whole class of Normal girls to sport in at once."

The "ladies basketball team" won the 1904 championship crown, while 12 more domestic-minded young women exercised their culinary skills in the first practical cooking class in the new kitchen in early January, 1905.

The Normal Lecture Course (later Lecture-Concert Series, now the Artists Series) brought Moro the Magician and a Hiawatha company of players to the five-year-old auditorium, which could seat 2,500 students—if camp chairs were set up in the aisles.

Perhaps the ladies attended draped in their best fur scarves, which could be purchased at the outrageously high price of $5.00, or in the latest cloth coat at $10.00. And after the concert, C. A. Wise & Sons Co., advised "when downtown, drop in and

By 1905, the Mandolin Club had grown to a "state of perfection." It was led by Mr. Fitzgerald (standing).

Wagner, Professors Complete Books Series

Dr. Guy Wagner, head of the SCI Curriculum Laboratory, and several State College of Iowa professors have recently completed a series of books designed to help elementary school children and their teachers use instructional games and activities in the classroom.

Published by the Teachers Publishing Corporation, Darien, Conn., the five books cover learning areas in reading, listening, fall, and members of the Schillerverein (German club) "met in the Old Ladies Gymnasium to hold their first informal meeting."

Classical music lovers heard the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra in two concerts, but the T. C. Minstrels brought down the house, with proceeds used "to secure sweaters for T. C. men."

The Iowa Club, a rural teachers' organization, boasted that "graduates of the rural teachers' course are going out to work in rural communities at salaries considerably in excess of those paid grade teachers in Iowa towns."

1925: Campanile Appears

The class of 1925 saw ground broken for the Campanile, the men's gym erected at a cost of $160,000, and triple-threat Iowa Conference championships in basketball, baseball and wrestling.

Flappers of the Roaring 20's era tried the new Marcel waves at the Vanity Beauty Shoppe—probably just before Flo Ziegfeld, Jr., chose the Old Gold beauties.

Other more hardy females participated in the Women's Athletic Association program, where a "hike of four to eight miles is nothing." Track girls ran away with the record in the 500-yard relay in the National Telegraphic Meet for College Women. Do you suppose they were clad in Kicker-nick bloomers, offered by the Lee Dry Goods Co.?

Concern for student morals was expressed by Professor Homan, reports the College Eye in a headline: "Prof. Homan will place Lady Nicotine under fire tomorrow . . . has made survey of the 64 cigarette smokers on campus." A College Eye editorial queries: "Is the American college fraternity system doomed?"

1940: Hovering War

The gathering storm of World War II hovered about the class of 1940 as they debated the isolation of the United States and the justification of passive existence amid festivities such as the sophomore cotillion ("Sucker Swing"), the Washington Ball, Femmes Fancy, and the senior prom.

Iowa Governor George A. Wilson addressed the Dad's Day luncheon and Norman Thomas arrived on campus a month later.

The Press Club sponsored the Commu-azi Political Rally, "an annual 'razz' dinner in which the students 'give the works' to the administration."

Dr. O. R. Latham had been president since 1929, the same year George H. Holmes, now director of college relations, came to ISTC to direct the bureau of publications. The 1940 Old Gold was dedicated to Mr. Holmes.

Nearly 450 graduating seniors watched "the greatest football comeback ever shown by a Teachers College team," coached by Clyde "Buck" Starbeck.

And "Coach Dave McCuskey and his Panther wrestlers gave Teachers College its best mat season since the sport was introduced in 1923."

language, arithmetic, and social studies.

Dr. Wagner's co-authors are SCI faculty members Dr. Max Hosier, associate professor of teaching, Laura Gilloley and Mildred Blackman, assistant professors of teaching, all at the Malcolm Price Laboratory School.

"Teachers have always used games of some sort to lighten the day's work, but often the games had little or no relationship to the classroom routine," said Dr. Wagner, who received his B.A. from SCI in 1926.

Dr. Wagner was honored for outstanding professional achievement in education as the 1961 recipient of an Alumni Achievement Award. He has been a consultant for the production of the education edition of the Readers Digest, editor of Iowa State Department of Instruction Curriculum Guides, contributing editor of Midland Schools, and associate editor of Education Magazine.

More than 20,000 copies of the first book in the series have been sold to school systems all over the United States, with sales of the other four books increasing rapidly.

Paul Smith Elected Head Of National Art Group

SCI professor of art Paul R. Smith was elected in late February to the presidency of the Artists Equity Association, Inc., a national organization composed of over 1,500 professional artists located throughout the United States.

Smith

Professor Smith, a member of the SCI art faculty since 1951, will serve a two-year term leading 25 chapters of the organization for sculptors, painters and graphic artists.

Professor Smith has paintings featured in the permanent collections at SCI, the University of Iowa, Des Moines and Sioux City Art Centers, Walker Museum in Minneapolis and Wright Museum in Beloit, Wis.

SCI Has 2 'Eliza's'

Mrs. Lauris

Mrs. Olsen

The State College of Iowa has produced two "Eliza's," who recently appeared in community theater versions of the Broadway musical "My Fair Lady."

Mrs. Donald Olsen (Barbara Priest, B.A. '57) portrayed Eliza in a spring production at Rochester, Minn. The daughter of Mrs. Leo Priest of Cedar Falls, she studied music with Jane Birkhead, associate professor of music.

Another "fair lady" is Mrs. George Lauris (Priscilla Hake, B.A., '61). She appeared in a production of the musical last July and August, sponsored by the Lane County Auditorium Association in Eugene, Ore. A speech and drama major, she also studied voice with Jane Mauck, assistant professor of music. Mrs. Lauris is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hake. Hake is director of radio and television at SCI.

Sjolander Takes State Office

Margaret Sjolander, head of the home economics department at SCI, was installed as president of the Iowa Home Economics Association at the group's state meeting April 10 in Fort Dodge.

Miss Sjolander will serve a two-year term and will travel to Atlantic City, N. J., in June to represent the Iowa home economists at the American Home Economics Association convention.

A graduate of Stout State University, she received her master's degree from the University of Wisconsin. She has served as head of the SCI home economics department since 1960.

The new SCI Administration building, built at a cost of $860,000, was occupied during March and April.

Administration Moves To New Building

As the Alumnus was going to press, a small migration was taking place on the campus. The college administrative offices began moving into their new building located south of 27th Street.

Moving began March 8 with the registrar's office and was scheduled to continue through the first weeks of April.

Occupying the first floor of the new building are the offices of the president, dean of instruction, dean of student personnel, coordinator of counseling, college relations, extension service, alumni, public school relations and the mail room.

The upper floor houses the registrar's and business offices and the Data Processing Center.

The confusion of moving was forgotten when spacious, convenient, attractive offices were occupied.

30 Students Get Campus Jobs Under Work-Study Program

Thirty State College of Iowa students have gained part-time employment as a result of a federal work-study grant instituted the second semester, according to Dennis Jensen, assistant to the dean of students at SCI.

The program stems from a provision of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 which authorizes the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to finance jobs for students from low-income families.

SCI was informed in late January that a federal grant of $9,180 had been approved for the local program with 10 per cent to be paid by the college.

The law specifies that the jobs be related to the student's educational objective or in the public interest and be work opportunities which otherwise could not be provided.

Students participating in the program will receive about $250 for each semester of work at rates of $1 to $1.50 per hour.

Jobs range from laboratory technicians to test graders in nearly every academic department of the college, Jensen said.

Student Will Go to Israel

Senior Max Schmidt of Elma is one of five Iowa students who will spend six months abroad this year in an "ambassadorship at the grass-roots level" through the International Farm Youth Exchange (IFYE).

IFYE is sponsored by the National 4-H Club Foundation and Schmidt was named for the honor through his work in 4-H.

He will spend six months in Israel working with farm families.
