SUE ELLEN SAVEREIDE reports that she is delighted to be back in the classroom after a twenty-year hiatus and a decision, at age 44, to begin graduate study in English education. She is now teaching language arts to seventh and tenth graders at Northern University High School in Cedar Falls. She hopes to pursue doctoral study in the teaching of writing, concentrating on revision strategies for young writers. She lives in Cedar Falls with her husband Robert, a surgeon, and her daughter Megann, an eighth grader. Her son James, a college freshman, provided the inspiration for the Vietnam unit.

JANE BEHRENS has taught English for eight years at both the junior and senior high school levels. She lives in Cedar Falls with her husband, son, and daughter and teaches at nearby Hudson Community School. Although a veteran teacher, she claims that the classroom is a source of unceasing discovery and surprise. When she is not teaching, she enjoys spending time with her family traveling, biking, and cross-country skiing.

CARLA NICHOLSON, an Iowa native, received bachelor’s and master’s degrees from the University of Northern Iowa in 1988 and 1989. She is currently teaching eighth grade English, advising the yearbook, and assisting with drama at Mission Junior High School in Bellevue, Nebraska. She is also involved in Bellevue’s transition to the middle-level philosophy which recognizes the opportunity to meet the special needs of the seventh and eighth grade student.
