

2-2022

Notes for the Stalled, v14n6, February 2022

University of Northern Iowa. Rod Library.

Let us know how access to this document benefits you

Copyright ©2022 Rod Library, University of Northern Iowa

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarworks.uni.edu/libnotes>

Part of the Higher Education Commons, and the Library and Information Science Commons

NOTES FOR THE STALLED

Black History Month

Come celebrate Black History Month with us here at Rod Library. Stop by the Learning Commons to see:

- The Art Wall featuring work from UNI Alumni and African American artists
- The main display case featuring Black history recognition at UNI
- The continuing series of displays from the Special Collections and University Archives highlighting the UNI Black Student Union

Career Fair

Stop by the McLeod Center from 12-4 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb 15 to join in on the Career Fair. Recruiters will be on hand looking for everything from summer workers to career professionals. For more information or to see what recruiters are attending, scan the QR code!

African American Children and Families Conference

Learn from a diverse group of leading presenters addressing critical issues impacting Black children and their families, particularly in light of the impact of a pandemic and ongoing discourse regarding social justice and equity. Being hosted by the College of Education as a virtual event this year, the conference carries the theme "Embracing African American Children and Families' Unique Qualities." The focus is a strengths-based model to improve and advance quality of life through education, support and advocacy. Theodora Pinnock, MD, Meharry Medical College, is among a slate of leading speakers planning to present.

Register at: aac.uni.edu/registration

Date with Rod Library

Let Rod Library help you meet your next crush!

Complete our online dating survey to be matched with your ideal Rod Library Book/Movie/ or other media, then stop by the Library Services desk to start your Blind Date! Stay tuned to our social media for all the details.

