THE COVER PICTURE

Miss 1876 coquettishly flips through an album of tintypes while Miss 1920's affects the bored attitude of the "flappers." These two young ladies (posed by Connie Severaid, Story City, and Patricia Lowell, Fairfield, respectively) were in costume rehearsing for the skits at the annual I.S.E.A. reunion in Des Moines. For the story on the reunion please turn to page 5.

Review of the Reviewer

When the Iowa State Teachers College was 50 years old a book was written by Professor David Sands Wright on his views of that first half-century of the college.

The notes on the author of that book were written by an outstanding graduate whose contributions and devotion to the College made it very fitting she be the one to write that introductory part to "Fifty Years at Teachers College."

With the completion of "The First Seventy-five Years," a history of the ideas behind this college's development, by I. H. Hart, this same outstanding alumna was asked to inscribe the foreword to Mr. Hart's book.

We asked her to write a review of the book for readers of THE ALUMNUS—she consented gladly. She is, of course, Alison E. Aitchison, profesor emeritus of natural science, author, former president of the National Council of Geography Teachers, recipient of that Council's Distinguished Service award, and one of the College's most active workers in organized alumni activities, and inspirational friend to hundreds of alumni.

The Ideas That Built Teachers College

Many things will be said and written about the Iowa State Teachers College in this its seventy-fifth anniversary year. The publication which will be of greatest interest to alumni is Irving H. Hart's "The First Seventy-five Years, a History of the Ideas Fundamental to the Development of the Iowa State Normal School and the Iowa State Teachers College." The book is unique in its organization. Rather than trace the school's growth year by year or decade by decade, the author has chosen to follow the development of each of the fundamental ideas and to show how each idea met changing administrations and changing eras in the educational program in the state and nation.

To gather the detailed information necessary for the presentation of the facts the author, our college archivist, has spent several years of research through Iowa school laws, the minutes of the school's Board of Directors and its successors, the Board of Education, the minutes of the college faculty meetings and the files of letters written by Principal Gilchrist and President Seerley. Quotations from some of these letter files are most revealing of the struggles of early days.

THE BIG QUESTION

For struggles there were, both financial and political. No one of them has attracted more attention throughout the state and aroused more excitement among alumni than the famous, or as we alumni considered it, the infamous coordination proposal of 1912-13. In the book are excerpts from letters and discussions of proposals submitted to the legislature that answer a question which has often been asked but has not always been answered correctly, "Why has Iowa only one state teachers college?"

The first and most fundamental idea which the book discusses is that "The state should organize and maintain a program specifically devoted to the training of teachers." This marks the origin of the Normal School which began in September 1876 in a "lone little group of buildings on a hill top distant more than half a mile from any other habitation." There on September 6 of that year the enrolment of 27 students took place.

NO LAND GRANTS

The college started without the benefits of the land grants by which the State University and the State College at Ames were helped. Our college's sole assets at that time were forty acres of land, the buildings erected for a Soldiers' Orphans Home and an appropriation of $14,500 to carry it through the first two years. They were brave souls who started on that venture and hard working ones for the entire faculty consisted of three persons in addition to Principal or President Gilchrist. Not until 1902 did the college benefit from a millage tax which was used, while it continued, to construct eight of the buildings on the campus. While the idea that the state should make provision for the maintenance of the school has prevailed in most quarters since its opening day, the growing importance of the college and the increasing wealth of our rich agricultural state has changed the scope of "should make provision."

OVER ALL CURRICULUM

The idea that "the over-all curricula of a state teachers education institution should be such as to lay a broad and thorough foundation for the work of the teacher" has been with the college since its beginning. The author points out the relationship between the slow gains which were made in accomplishing this aim and the low certification requirements for teachers which existed in Iowa. Differences of opinion as to how "over all curriculum" should be divided between general education and professional work have been the occasion for many hours of fervid oratory and months of earnest and intensive study. The latest and most complete revision of curricula, made by a committee of nine, is going into effect this year.

The evolution from the one room "Model School" on the campus to the laboratory school of today has been a continuous one. Those of you who did your student teaching during the days of the "parallel columns and the five formal steps" will enjoy Mr. Hart's reference to them, but only you will remember the hurried switch of material from one column to another in emergencies.

IN SCHOOLS, ON THE AIR

Gradually many additions have been made to the program of the college. One of the more important was the initiation of in-service education of teachers through the organization of the Extension Service in 1913. In the initial years this offered help to teachers in the field through Saturday study centers. Later these were given up and extension class work, correspondence courses and consultative service replaced them. As a part of the extension work a radio education program was introduced in 1942. It has been expanded until it is estimated that as many as three thousand Iowa schools are receiving programs from Iowa State Teachers College of the Air.

Until one reads the history it is difficult to realize how gradually some of the things which began as extra curricular activities have become part of the curricular program. An example of this is found in the religious program of the school, present in some form since that first September day. The large Bible classes, once so prominent on the Hill, were taught for years by volunteer leaders. When transportation to down town churches became easier these classes died down. In 1915 courses in Bible study were offered in the curriculum on an elective basis. In 1928 a Director of Religious Activities was appointed as a regular member of the faculty. Many extra curricular religious programs are still maintained on the campus and in the various church centers on the hill.

THE AUTHOR'S TASK

We owe a debt of gratitude to Mr. Hart for gathering together in this scholarly fashion the things which we have never known about our school and those which we have known and forgotten. Only a real student of history and her strange ways could have selected from the mass of source material which he examined, the ideas which have made our school great. You may miss from the book names which you would have liked to have seen, but we suspect that time and space forbade the inclusion of many persons to whom the author might have liked to pay his respects. We may hope that there will be future publications which will present personalities who have meant much to the college. To those of you who were fellow students of Mr. Hart's son, Evan, it will be of interest to know that the many fine illustrations in the book are the work of his pen.

FACULTY NOTES

Henry Van Engen, head of the department of mathematics, is the co-author of a new second grade arithmetic book, "Numbers in Action." Van Engen collaborated with M. L. Hartung, University of Chicago, in producing the book which uses light vocabulary load and stresses use of pictorial sequences to develop number concepts.

At the 39th National Safety Congress and Exposition in Chicago in October, Bert L. Woodcock (B.A. '29) was presented a plaque and citation for his state and national efforts in promoting driver education. Woodcock is safety education and driver training director.

Special issues of the Readers Digest have been prepared for remedial reading and developmental reading at level of grades four, five and six. Guy Wagner (B.A. '26), head of the TC curriculum laboratory and senior editor of the project was assisted by three colleagues from other institutions. The Readers Digest Reading Skill Builder, as they are called, has a format very similar to the Reader's Digest, but has larger type and is profusely illustrated.

"The series was designed to develop power in a wide range of reading skills," says Wagner, "with special emphasis on building word power, understanding, and ability to evaluate reading material critically."

Stories in the "Skill Builder" are re-written from pieces which originally appeared in the Reader's Digest.

Dr. Harold Bernhard, director of religious activities, was the featured speaker at the midwest regional convention of the Lutheran Student Association of America at Dana College, Blair, Neb., November 9.

HARRIS

Henry Harris of the music department has a program "Piano Profiles" over radio station WOI, Ames—originating in the TC studios. One of his most enthusiastic listeners is a wheelchair-ridden young man in Oskaloosa, Robert Bruere. He and Harris struck up a friendship via the mails. Bruere asked Harris to play Beethoven's Sonata Opus 10 No. 3 on one of his programs since it was his favorite and he could not purchase a recording of it. Since Harris had used that selection on an earlier program and did not want to repeat it he cut three 12-inch records of the Sonata and sent the recordings to Bruere with his compliments.

Lecture-Concert Series Supplements Humanities

The 1951-52 lecture-concert series at Teachers College is based on a new idea that the series should provide educational experiences outside the advantages provided by the general Teachers College staff.

A program of popular music, serious music, drama, art and the dance has been scheduled. Harry James and his orchestra appeared October 1; Charles Coburn presented dramatic skits November 28. On February 6, Artist Salvador Dali will speak, the Slavenska Ballet troupe will appear March 3, and Boris Goldovsky will describe and illustrate the field of piano literature on March 20.

Radio program director, Herbert V. Hake, who is chairman of the lecture-concert committee, said, "It is our hope that over a four-year period we may provide a diversity of programs which will supplement the new humanities program at the college."

ATTRACT 250 TO DES MOINES REUNION

Mary Dutcher, TC student from Red Oak, attired in turn-of-the-century costume, wanders through the crowd at the Des Moines Reunion. On stage, a quartet sang "After the Ball."

Alumni and friends of the college—nearly 250 of them—lived again the days of the past at the annual Reunion in Des Moines, November 2, during the I.S.E.A. convention.

Under the title "Down Through the Years," the audience was treated to a flashback to the years 1876, 1900, the 1920's, the 1940's and a glimpse of 1951. A narration by G. H. Holmes on customs, events and typical dress set the scene for songs from each era presented by a small college ensemble attired in costumes of each period.

Melvin Anderson, Toledo superintendent and president of the General Alumni Association, served as master of ceremonies and introduced President Maucker, who spoke briefly; and Irving H. Hart, college archivist, who delivered a short message on the historical significance of this 75th Anniversary Year.

Group singing rocked the banquet hall of the Moose Hall with the team of Oscar Thompson (TC education department) leading and Olive Barker (B.A. 31) of the music department accompanying. (See picture below.)

Audience participation songs were led by Mrs. C. D. Lowell (PSM '29) of Fairfield, assisted by her daughter Patricia, a student at Teachers College. Myron Russell, new head of the music department, was also called on to lead the group in song.

On display in the banquet hall were early

"Early Birds" Attend Second Conservation Camp Reunion

The second annual reunion breakfast of the Iowa Teachers Conservation camp attracted eighty early risers during the I.S.E.A. convention, November 2, in Des Moines.

Special guests included I.S.T.C. President J. W. Maucker and Superintendent of Public Instruction Jessie Parker. Mrs. Helen Beem presided at the breakfast program which featured announcements of future camp activities, and the showing by Dr. Emery Will of the television film made by the Iowa State Teachers College crew at the second session of the 1951 camp.

George Worley of the conservation commission supervised distribution of certificates to those camp "alumni" who had completed the course.

The breakfast committee included Mrs. Novella Bredbenner (B.A. '48), Miss Ruth Leupold (B.A. '35), Mrs. Beem, Mrs. Evelyn DeJoode, Mrs. Geneva Birk and Miss Merna Rowe.

Three Sessions Planned for 1952 Springbrook Camp

Announcement of a new schedule for the summer conservation camp at Springbrook State Park will appear in the Summer Bulletin to be published in January.

According to the Bulletin, the first session will run from June 8 to June 28 and will deal with soil, water and forests—emphasis on the elementary grades and conservation level.

The second session, June 29 to July 19, will be open to secondary teachers and besides soil, water and forests will include wildlife conservation study.

The third session from July 27 to August 16 will be open to elementary teachers who have attended conservation camp before, as well as to new campers. Emphasis during this session will be on soil nutrients, wildlife, and balance in nature.

Each session will provide work toward five quarter hours credit. The camp this year will be under the direction of Emery L. Will of the department of science. Further information the camp may be obtained from Dr. Will.

Copies of the Summer Bulletin for 1952 will be available by writing The Registrar after the first of the year.

Fall Play, "The Enchanted," Directed by Hazel Strayer

The fall play this year was "The Enchanted" by Jean Giraudoux. A cast of 12 Teachers College students and eight girls from the Campus School was directed by Miss Hazel Strayer.

According to Miss Strayer, this is one of the few colleges in the country attempting this play.

She was assisted in the production by Elaine McDavitt and Richard Arnold.

CAMPUS VISITORS

Former director of the Teachers College bureau of religious activities, Dr. Harold A. Bosley, addressed an all-college convocation November 14. The present pastor of the First Methodist Church, Evanston, Ill., spoke on "An Obituary of Modern Civilization."

Dr. George Willoughby, regional executive secretary of the American Friends Service committee, Des Moines, was featured speaker during the College Council of Religion's annual fall conference titled "A Just and Durable Peace."

Prof. Zoild D. T. San Andres, of National Teachers College, Manila, P. I., visited Teachers College in October. He was on a round-the-world educational tour sponsored by a scholarship from his Philippine institution.

Prof. San Andres' chief interest was in the field of elementary, rural and laboratory schools.

'Elijah' Performance Great Success

An overflow crowd made it "standing-room-only" at the music department's beautiful presentation of "The Elijah" on November 18 in the Men's Gymnasium.

The performance of Mendelssohn's famous oratorio was the third event set aside to commemorate the 75th Anniversary of the Teachers College.

Soloists were Jane Birkhead, Jane Mauck, Maurice Gerow and John Powell. The combined college choruses and the symphony orchestra were conducted by Roland Searight. The vocal groups were prepared by Maurice Gerow.

Time to Think About Professional Advancement

The College Placement Bureau extends to teaching alumni who are interested in professional advancement a cordial invitation to re-register with the bureau and bring their credentials up-to-date. Re-registration is especially suggested for alumni and former students who have successful teaching records for the past two or three years, and who are interested in seeking advancement for the 1952-53 school year.

In order that materials may be processed in time to be ready for the peak placement season, alumni are urged to re-register sometime during the months of January or February. Re-registration after March 1st may result in materials not being readily available for the use of employing school officials at the time many of them are on the campus recruiting new or additional teaching personnel.

Public school officials' primary interest in experienced candidates revolves around those whose confidential materials are up-to-date and include recent evaluations of their teaching experiences. Alumni should be aware of the fact that school officials are placing more and more confidence in the recommendations of institutional teacher placement offices. May we remind you again that re-registration with the placement bureau requires no fee, and the acceptance of a teaching position calls for no commission.

The most effective relationship between a candidate and a teacher placement office may be secured by becoming personally and professionally acquainted with the director in charge. Dr. Raymond J. Schlicher, newly appointed director of the college placement bureau, takes this opportunity to personally extend an invitation to all alumni, and especially to those who re-register with the bureau, to either write him a personal letter describing the professional advancement desired or visit the office at any time to make his personal acquaintance.

With the continued cooperation of the alumni, the college placement bureau at Iowa State Teachers College will continue to strive toward more effective service to the graduates of the college and the school officials of the state and nation.

Campus Conferences

The second annual RETAIL SALES TRAINING CLINIC sponsored by the I.S.T.C. business education department was held during October. Speaker at the first session (October 10) was G. H. Holmes, director of public relations; John Pruis, of the English and speech department, spoke at the October 17 session; and Art Brayton, secretary of the Des Moines Chamber of Commerce convention bureau, addressed the October 31 dinner meeting. Director of the clinic was business education department's Leonard Keefe, who spoke at the October 24 meeting.

The FALL EDUCATION CONFERENCE attracted 425 participants including 50 county superintendents and supervisors who attended the Friday workshops, September 28. Mrs. May Hill Arbuthnot, authority on children's literature, addressed that session as well as the September 29 session for elementary and junior high school personnel.

ART WORKSHOP for elementary teachers on November 17 emphasized the areas of working with children and the discovery of the third dimension. This third annual workshop drew an enrollment of 120.

Drafting Americans for essential service in wartime was the topic at the sixth annual IOWA HIGH SCHOOL DISCUSSION conference November 16 and 17. About twenty Iowa schools participated.

High school business students within a 50-mile radius of Cedar Falls and all the 13 FBLA chapters in Iowa were invited to the sixth annual state convention of the FUTURE BUSINESS LEADERS OF AMERICA held on campus November 10.

Fall Enrollment Shows Slight Drop

Fall enrollment figures released by Registrar M. R. Beard showed a total of 2,036 students registered at the end of regular registration. This included 883 men and 1,423 women.

This figure is a drop of 377 from fall of 1950 when 2,683 had registered.

Twenty-one Students Named in College "Who's Who"

Twenty-one TC students have been accepted for recognition in the 1951-52 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Nominations were made by the student welfare committee at the college and were based on scholarship, leadership and extra-curricular activities.

Homecoming ...

THREE DAYS OF CELEBRATION

"75 Years and Still on Top" was the theme of this prize-winning Homecoming float entered in competition by Phi Sigma Phi and Phi Sigma Epsilon. Second prize for floats went to off-campus students (both Waterloo and Cedar Falls) while third place went to Gamma Delta.

Second event commemorating Teachers College's 75th Anniversary was Homecoming, October 26, 27, 28. The variety show and Homecoming dance were held on Friday, which turned out to be "Cut Day" when students left their early morning classes to follow the pep band pipers who went tooting through the halls. A Cut Day parade filled the streets of downtown Cedar Falls with a cheering throng of students.

Saturday proved to be "handshake" day as thirty campus organizations played host to returning alumni with teas, breakfasts, and coffee hours.

The traditional hockey game between the Women's Physical Education majors and the alumnae ended in a 4-0 score for the students Saturday morning.

A parade nearly half-a-mile long started from downtown and ended at the campus. A pep rally under the campanile followed.

Seerley Hall won first prize for house decorations, Stadium won second, and Bartlett Hall was third. Off-campus decorations prize went to the Presbyterian Student center, with the Methodist center taking second.

Dixie Laughery, freshman from Charles City, was chosen as Homecoming Queen. She was crowned before the football game on Saturday night by President Maucker.

The game with Morningside was won by the Panthers 27-7 after a half-time tie of 7-7.

More than 7,000 fans watched the game.

Former director of religious activities here at Teachers College, Dr. Gerald Knoff, was the Homecoming chapel speaker on Sunday morning.

The Sunday Open House attracted about 800 visitors who were shown around the campus by volunteer guides from the Future Teachers organization.

The annual Homecoming concert by the music department attracted a large crowd and featured music varying from classical to a jitterbug parody.

NOTE

Our thanks are due to Grace M. Lambert, B.A. 1911, for copies of the four numbers of the Alumni Newsletter for 1926, previously missing from our files.

A recheck of these files reveals the fact that we still lack the Newsletter for January, 1927, Volume XI, Number 1.

Does any alumnus have a copy of this issue which he or she is willing to contribute to the Archives?

SPORTS PARADE

Basketball Team Seeks Fifth Title

With the start of the North Central conference basketball campaign just ahead, Iowa Teachers will be trying to capture its fifth successive league title.

Tune-up games with several non-conference foes have given the club some much-needed experience. For it is a green, though promising, squad which represents the 1951-52 Panthers of Coach O. M. (Hon) Nordly.

Just a year ago, however, the experts said the Panthers didn't stand a chance for their fourth straight title, as only one letterman was around. Yet the Panthers demonstrated great defensive play in the league campaign and tied Morningside for the title.

This year's club has five lettermen, but only one was a regular a year ago. Howard Pigg, a forward, was the third best scorer on last season's club.

The other veterans from last year are Guard Don Erickson and Centers LaVerne Greenfield and Tom Wilke. Also on hand is Bill York, letterman guard from 1949-50 who missed last season because of a football injury.

Several newcomers have promise of making the veterans fight for regular berths, and if the new men come through, Nordly's boys might once again surprise the rest of the league.

Jack Rollinger and Harold Schuchmann head a promising crew from last year's freshman team, which also includes Jack Soner, Jerry Anderson and Dick Miller.

Incoming freshmen are making their presence felt, particularly big and rugged Al Carew, Charley Langerud and Don Christensen. And Jerry Grady and Willis Vallet, transfer students, have been impressive.

Several 1950-51 squad members who failed to win letters can't be overlooked either. Gene Glab, Ray Gilbert and Don Litchenberg spearhead that group.

As a whole, Nordly feels that this year's club has better shooting than the team last season, but can't match the defensive play of that team.

With Greenfield, Wilke, Carew, Langerud and Litchenberg, the team has plenty of height. And in Erickson, Glab and Grady, there is plenty of speed. Pigg and York are excellent all-around players and mainstays.

Nordly fears North Dakota, an all-veteran club, as well as veteran squads from North Dakota State and Augustana in the league. The Nodaks rank as the team to beat.

Newcomers Hold Key to Wrestling

Three consecutive NAAU team championships, the 1950 NCAA team title, 13 individual NAAU titles in the past three years, 14 individual NCAA crowns in the past six years—that's the record of Coach Dave McCuskey's Panther wrestlers.

In effect, the Panthers have acted as if they invented the sport in recent seasons.

How will the 1951-52 team fit into that parade? Individually, several men could shine. As a team, newcomers must produce in great style to produce the over-all power needed for team titles.

Gene Lybbert, who won the NAAU 128-pound crown a year ago and finished third in the NCAA meet, will be a key performer. Another will be Bill Weick, second to team-mate Keith Young in the NAAU 155-pound class last year. Also on hand is Clyde Bean, third in the NAAU as a 136-pounder.

Those three men, along with 165-pounder Clyde Dilley, also a letterman, form the backbone of the squad.

Gone are such stars as Keith Young, undefeated in three years of competition and winner of six national titles, and John Harrison, twice a national champ.

Several minor award winners also return. They are Jerry Kunze, 128; Glen Salzbrenner, 136; Dick Eisenlauer, 145, and Ray Oles, 175.

But if the team is to be truly strong, McCuskey feels that newcomers will have to come through.

In that class Bob Morris, 136-pound transfer student, shines. Also on hand are two prep champs of a year ago, Bud Weick, brother of Bill, 145-pound winner in Illinois, and Iowa 155-pound titlist Elmer Bradley.

Other leading candidates are:

123—Pat McCarron.

145—Wes Sterner, Pat Halligan.

155—Bill Oglesby.

165—James Clark, Dick Bradfield.

175—Bob Jacobson, Rod Geist.

Heavyweight—Charley Papousek, Gordon Blenderman.

The team opened its season in the annual Teachers college Invitational tourney December 8, and gained valuable experience in that meet.

Purdue of the Big 10 opens the dual meet card here January 11, with NCAA titlist Oklahoma and Iowa State also to appear here.

1952 being an Olympic year, McCuskey feels that all teams will be stronger this season as individuals point for possible Olympic team berths.

Panthers Chalk Up 'Roller Coaster' Football Season

For a C. L. (Buck) Starbeck coached club, the 1951 Iowa State Teachers college football team had an unusually poor season.

It's not that the gridiron campaign was without moments of glory. On the contrary, the team acquitted itself very well on numerous occasions. But for a team coached by Starbeck, the season's record of three wins and four losses was unusual. That record marked the first time since 1938 that a Panther team coached by Starbeck finished below the .500 mark for the year.

It was an unusual season in many respects. The Panthers were invincible at home, playing three games and winning by margins of 20, 30 and 60 points. On the road the situation was reversed. Four times the Panthers took to foreign fields, and four times they met defeat.

Perhaps the best analysis of the 1951 club would be to classify it as a typical young team, one that played excellent ball at times but made costly mistakes due to inexperience on other occasions.

When Starbeck started the season he had only nine lettermen, including two regulars, on hand from the year before. Freshmen were once again eligible for varsity competition, and they were a predominant factor on the squad.

That green contingent faced South Dakota

It was these 13 men who got intercollegiate football started at Iowa Teachers, then Iowa State Normal School, in 1895, when they won one game and lost two against outside competition. The men were: (back row, left to right) Johnson, Clark, Schmidt, Capt. Sanders, Bascom, Plummer and Crocker; (middle row) Foxe and Greene, and (front row) Conway, Anderson, Horton and Manager McReady. (Picture reproduced from The Normal Eye, June 24, 1896).

State, the defending league champion, and lost a 48-6 decision in the opener. But by the next Saturday they had bounced back far enough to take a 49-19 win over the University of North Dakota.

That up-and-down pattern prevailed most of the season. The Panthers hit their peak in a 67-7 win over Augustana at Dad's Day and a 27-7 Homecoming triumph over Morningside.

The win over Augustana established a new margin of victory for a Panther team coached by Starbeck. And the team compiled 700 yards from scrimmage in the game to set another new mark.

Arnold Paulsen's 98-yard run from scrimmage in that game set a Panther record, and a fourth mark fell when the team compiled 2,697 yards of total offense for the year, despite the mediocre record and a schedule of just seven games.

Only nine seniors will be lost from the 1951 team, leaving Starbeck a good nucleus.

Of the men who finished competition, six were regulars. They were Tackles Ralph Martin and George Magrane, Halfbacks Leland Crew and Dick Eisenlauer and Fullbacks Bud Rainbow and John Beach. The other seniors were End Dick Bogg, Tackle Tom Swenson and Guard Wally Stittsworth.

The four senior backs and freshman Pat Halligan shared offensive honors. Magrane, Martin, Center Lou Bohnsack, Guard Karl Rauch and End Mahlon Kaylor were stand-outs in the line.

Alaskan School Founded by TC Alumni

Five years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Alexander, B.A. '24 (Janet Thomas Galford, B.A. '25), went up to Point Hope, Alaska, and started a school for the Eskimo children.

The Alexanders' first year was "a rugged one." They did not have enough canned goods, and supplies had to be shipped in. If ships were delayed, it meant starvation.

At Point Hope, the Alexanders have ninety-three pupils ranging from two- to seventeen-year-olds. The Alexanders prepare breakfast and serve the children before classes start in the morning. Every effort is made to maintain high standards of health for these children.

The Arctic village schoolhouse is conveniently connected to the Alexanders' living quarters to protect them from going out into the cold on stormy days.

In Alaska, there are ninety-three schools maintained by the Alaska Native Service for Alaska Eskimos, Aleuts, and Indians. These are mostly in isolated areas of the interior, the Arctic, the Alaska peninsula and the Aleutian chain. The Territorial system functions in cities, towns and incorporated school districts.

The Alexanders' daughter Mary Louise is a full-fledged radio operator in addition to being a teacher and assistant in the school.

Early Librarian Dies in California

A card has come to friends in Cedar Falls announcing the memorial services of Anna M. Baker, formerly Librarian at Iowa State Teachers College. Her death occurred at Long Beach, California, on April 28, 1951. Miss Baker was in charge of the library from the fall term of 1894 through the school year ending in 1907, when she declined re-election to the post she had served so efficiently over the years.

The correspondence in the Seerley files indicates that the Board of Trustees was anxious to secure Miss Baker to organize the library, which, by 1894, had come to contain 8000 volumes. Miss Baker was born in Canada, but had come to Iowa in childhood, and was a graduate of the Waterloo high school. She had received kindergarten training at Chicago, and had served the Iowa General Assembly as Bill Clerk. That she had not had library training is evidenced by an inquiry made to President Seerley by which she asks about a "system of classifying which you showed us." This also reveals that the President was apparently studying the matter, as the condition of the library at the time was one of more or less chaos.

Undeterred by this lack of intensive knowledge, Miss Baker proceeded with decided organizing ability to classify and grade the library. In this she was ably assisted by Miss Ethel Arey and later by a constantly growing staff. In Miss Baker's day the college library occupied the rooms now used by the Dean of the Faculty and the Registrar.

A niece who cared for Miss Baker reports in a letter to Miss Myra E. Call, former Latin teacher here, that her aunt had been an invalid for four years, confined to her bed or chair. During this time her friends report that she never gave up hope until the very last. During these last years, she loved to be taken to her rose garden. Miss Baker was a poet, a constant student, a cultured and refined example of Christian womanhood.

He taught in rural schools and at Victor and Grinnell and became principal of the Waterloo East high school. He was superintendent of schools at Waverly for six years. In 1925 Mr. Griffith went to Iowa State college as professor of visual instruction and became director of WOI until 1946, then became educational director for the station. He is survived by his wife, two sons, and one daughter.

C. W. Wester

News comes to the Campus of the passing of Professor Charles W. Wester, who was a mathematics teacher here for a quarter of a century preceding his resignation in 1940. Mr. Wester's death, at Eugene, Oregon, removes the last of the members of his department who were here when Dr. Van Engen became the Head. Mr. Wester's wife, Mrs. Mabel Wheeler Wester, survives him as does an adopted son, Col. James Luker Wester, B.A. '32, of Albuquerque, New Mexico. Mr. Wester came to the college from the State University of Iowa, making the change because he desired to have closer contact with children in the public schools. Death came while Wester was working in his lily garden. He was prominent among the organized growers of Oregon. While here he delighted in experimenting with flowers. The alumni will remember him as a devoted and efficient teacher in his field, and his neighbors will bring up images of his gorgeous dahlias.

Souvenir Spoon Placed in Museum

Brigadier General George H. McManus, U.S.A. Retired (B.Di. '87), visited the campus in August and presented to the college museum an old souvenir spoon engraved with a replica of the original Normal School.

The spoon is a memento of the class of 1887 and originally belonged to Susie Mack (Mrs. John E. Light, B.Di. '87) who died February 14, 1951.

Offer Extension Classes In Southwest Iowa

In an effort to combat the growing shortage of elementary teachers, the Iowa State Teachers College this fall began a series of weekly extension classes in four southwest Iowa communities.

Classes were set up in Audubon, Red Oak, Denison and Greenfield.

In outlining the extension course program President J. W. Maucker said, "The elementary teacher shortage today is critical and will get worse as time goes on."

The courses, said Dr. Maucker, "will offer an opportunity for those people now engaged in teaching to renew teaching certificates or work toward a higher certificate.

"The extension class program should appeal to the large group of potential teachers in southwest Iowa."

In this group, he explained, are wives of professional people and of farmers whose families are grown and in school—people who have an intense interest in serving their communities.

Director of Extension Service E. L. Ritter has pointed out that this is a cooperative venture with the county superintendent. He added that this new program would mean no appreciable decrease in the other services furnished by the Extension division, but that the TC faculty members in the area for extension classes will be available to visit classrooms there.

College Radio Broadcasts Aired by Creston Station

Two weekly half-hour radio programs originating in the studios of Iowa State Teachers College are being tape recorded for later broadcast over radio station KSIB, Creston.

According to Herbert V. Hake, radio program director, the programs scheduled for re-broadcast are "Ask the Scientist" and "Concert Classics," two regular features heard weekly over WSUI, Iowa City, at 7:00 p.m. Mondays and 7:00 p.m. Fridays respectively.

The Creston radio station has set aside a half hour, 3:00 to 3:30 p.m., for broadcast of educational programs, Hake said.

Programs originating in the Teachers College studios are aired over stations WSUI and over WOI in Ames.

photographs from the Normal School and Teachers College. Alumni who arrived early found many friends to talk with and college publications to browse through. The College Eye was distributed at the banquet and was available at the Teachers College booth in the foyer of the KRNT Theater building where alumni made reservations for the dinner.

Alaskan Snow Knife In Museum Display

A snow knife given by Miss K. Bauxbaum, acting librarian, is on display in the college museum. This knife of ivory, made and carved by the Eskimos of the Kuskowin River region in Southwest Alaska is the type used by story tellers. They scrape a smooth place in the snow or sand and draw pictures using the knife as a tool.

Merchant Effects Sold at Auction

Household goods, dishes, linens, tools and furnishings belonging to the Frank I. Merchant estate were sold at auction November 10. Dr. Merchant, emeritus professor of Greek and Latin, died April 30 at the age of 95.

His will provided that his entire estate be used to finance graduate study for students who had received bachelor of arts degrees from the Iowa State Teachers College. All property and proceeds from the auction are to be part of the Merchant Fund, as it is known. Income from the fund will go to maintain students studying under the "Merchant Scholarship" at the institutions of their choice whether domestic or foreign.

Scholarships will be awarded by the College president and department heads according to stipulations of the late Dr. Merchant's will.

Dr. Schenk was professor of internal medicine at SUI for nearly nine years and was president of the Iowa Congregational Hospital association for three years. He was very active in Boy Scout work.

He is survived by his wife, Lucy; daughter Mrs. Anna Dangremond, Chicago; three sons, Erwin, Moline, Ill., Homer, Des Moines, and Dr. Richard, Cleveland, Ohio; three sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Sage, Waterloo; Mrs. Lena Gibbs, Newcastle, Neb., and Mrs. Katherine Sage, San Pedro, Calif.; three brothers, Ernest, Waterloo; Casper, Hollywood, Calif., and William of Anoka, Minn.

Tree Lighting Ceremony Begins Christmas Season

The Christmas tree lighting ceremony on December 6 officially opened the yule season at Teachers College. A program of carols from the housing units accompanied the tree lighting by President Maucker.

December 8 marked the winter formal—the theme this year was "Wintermezzo" with music by the Bill Meardon band.

The annual production of "The Messiah" was directed by Myron Russell, head of the department of music. Handel's oratorio was presented by the combined choirs and college orchestra.

Three evenings of carols and coffee for students and faculty were held December 9, 10 and 11.
