Connections to Other Disciplines (Opt.):
- Science: Examine the animals mentioned in the story. Research the ecosystems and biomes of northern India.
- Math: Population pyramids for various regions in India – is there an absence of females? Compare pyramids to those from other countries or regions. Explore the value of the rupee.
- Music: When comparing contrasting urban and rural areas, imagine the sounds Koly could hear in each. Research Indian music and instruments.
- Life Skills: Look up and create an Indian meal. Can they find recipes for specific items mentioned in the story?

Time Frame (Req.): 3-4 weeks

Goal (Req.): To use literature to learn about geography.

Objective (Req.): Students will use “Homeless Bird” to identify Indian geography and culture. Students will define vocabulary from the text. Students will locate important geographical places.

Materials Needed (Req.):
- Outline maps of India
- Homeless Bird Journal and Graphic Organizer
- Compare and Contrast Handouts
- Wall maps and/or laminated desk maps of India; set of world atlases
- Set of Homeless Bird by Gloria Whelen or one copy for teacher to read aloud
- Squares of white paper to serve as quilt blocks; colored pencils, markers, and/or crayons
- Vocabulary and Discussion questions

New Vocabulary (Opt.):

Anticipatory Set/Introduction [Inquiry Question is required] (Req.): How does fiction describe India’s geography and culture?

Instructional Sequence/Procedure (Req.):
1. Using an outline map of India, have the students locate and label the places mentioned in the story, “Homeless Bird”, set in India, these include: Delhi, Ganges River, Varanasi, Yamuna River, Vrindavan
2. Instruct the students to also check that their maps contain the important features of a map, such as the title, key, symbols, color, compass, and scale.
3. Pass out copies of “Homeless Bird” to students or read to the class from one copy. This is the story of Koly, a young girl in India whose parents arrange for her to marry a boy who is sick with tuberculosis. His family actually wants the dowry money so that they can take him to the holy waters of the Ganges River in hopes of curing him. Unfortunately, he dies and Koly is a widow.
The story tells how she overcomes poverty and unhappiness.

4. Give the students copies of the graphic organizer and “Homeless Bird” Journal on which to record geographical, cultural, and vocabulary information presented in the story.

5. Have the students form reading/discussion groups, ideally of four students each. As each chapter is read, students should record appropriate vocabulary definitions and answers discussion questions. In addition, after each chapter in “Homeless Bird”, each person in the group chooses one of the four perspectives (economic, geographic, historical or political) to incorporate when discussing the information that they have read. Using the graphic organizer, students write notes about the chapter from that particular perspective in social studies. If the students have not have prior experiences with reading for content perspectives, the teacher may want to discuss the process prior to beginning the reading/discussion groups. As they discuss the information, students continue to make notes on their own graphic organizer.

6. One theme throughout “Homeless Bird” is the embroidery work that Koly does. After each chapter, have each group turn in one quilt block portraying their favorite scene from the chapter. Quilt blocks should be neat and colored.

7. Give students time to examine maps of India. Koly lived in three unnamed villages throughout the story. Once before she was married, once she had married, and third at the end. Using their imaginations and clues from the text (how long Koly traveled, the terrain, farming practices, etc.) students should locate and label the three villages. Remember, a number of different answers will be correct. Students should then map out the path of Koly on their India maps.

8. Allow students to use their journal, graphic organizer, and map to compare and contrast rural regions and urban regions in the story. Have them think about Koly’s opinions, the opinions of others, weather, activities, along with items from the resources mentioned above. Each student will need to turn in one compare and contrast handout.

9. Upon completing the book, all journals will be due. Also, have students combine and refine their graphic organizers. Provide students with a new copy of the graphic organizer, one per group, and instruct the group to write the main ideas on it. This copy is to be turned in for evaluation. Have each group present their ideas in a class discussion.

10. Beyond the Classroom: Have each students create a quilt block about his/her life. Display the blocks like a quilt for a class quilt decoration.

| Formative Evaluation (Req.): Class Participation | Assessment (Req.): Each student will develop a project to show what he/she has learned about India from “Homeless Bird”. Several opinions are: Multimedia Presentation, Internet Field Trip, Diorama, Illustrated Book, Pop-Up Book. Obviously, the possibilities are endless. Use projects that you and your students can get excited about. Topics for individual projects could be: trains, music, quilts, fabrics, widows, cinema, arranged marriages, dowry system, caste system, weddings, funerals, Hinduism, regional food, child labor, Ganges, Krishna, etc. Other considerations: “Homeless Bird” Journal, Graphic Organizer, |
