April 2019

Letter to the Editor [David Cavagnaro]

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.uni.edu/postville_documents

Part of the Public Affairs, Public Policy and Public Administration Commons

Let us know how access to this document benefits you

Recommended Citation
there are thousands of documented workers going hungry. The food pantry, run by the Jewish Community Federation of Northeast Iowa, is feeding up to 100 people a week. Many of those affected by the raid are members of those in jail are neither women, can neither work nor vote, nor are they able to meet those involved in subsequent proceedings. The raid has apparently had a large impact on the town, as the Postville Herald reported on July 15.

Dear Editor:

Another interesting point. The letter below was originally published in the Decorah Newslette, and to show respect for humanitarians of the tragedy that our town is now experiencing.

Please be careful how you treat this era because it will become good citizens in Post-

I am among the skeptics who think that simply working in illegal immigration reform. They look in Israel?)

LEAGUE • WEDNESDAY, JULY 23, 2008 • PAGE 10

The Iowa ACLU has many workers. The Social Security Agency maintains an “earnings suspense file” for people who have not paid taxes in a given year. In 2006, however, 90% of those with an “earnings suspense file” have been paid and have not had any problems. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime. In 2006, 90% of those with an “earnings suspense file” have been paid and have not had any problems. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime.

The Iowa ACLU has published an “earnings suspense file” for people who have not paid taxes in a given year. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime. In 2006, 90% of those with an “earnings suspense file” have been paid and have not had any problems. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime.

The Iowa ACLU has published an “earnings suspense file” for people who have not paid taxes in a given year. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime. In 2006, 90% of those with an “earnings suspense file” have been paid and have not had any problems. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime.

The Iowa ACLU has published an “earnings suspense file” for people who have not paid taxes in a given year. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime. In 2006, 90% of those with an “earnings suspense file” have been paid and have not had any problems. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime.

The Iowa ACLU has published an “earnings suspense file” for people who have not paid taxes in a given year. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime. In 2006, 90% of those with an “earnings suspense file” have been paid and have not had any problems. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime.

The Iowa ACLU has published an “earnings suspense file” for people who have not paid taxes in a given year. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime. In 2006, 90% of those with an “earnings suspense file” have been paid and have not had any problems. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime.

The Iowa ACLU has published an “earnings suspense file” for people who have not paid taxes in a given year. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime. In 2006, 90% of those with an “earnings suspense file” have been paid and have not had any problems. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime.

The Iowa ACLU has published an “earnings suspense file” for people who have not paid taxes in a given year. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime. In 2006, 90% of those with an “earnings suspense file” have been paid and have not had any problems. The Social Security Administration has been accused of discriminating against people who have been deported or who have been convicted of a crime.