Sophomores Rank High in National Test Comparison

SOPHOMORES IN 1949 at Iowa State Teachers College compared favorably with sophomores from other colleges in the nation, according to Dr. J. B. Paul, director of the bureau of research at Teachers College. The national tests were in English, general culture, and contemporary affairs.

The national norms are based on scores obtained by 5,100 sophomores in 69 colleges throughout the nation. "A total of 684 Teachers College sophomores participated," Dr. Paul said.

In the English test, Teachers College sophomores, as a group, equalled or exceeded national norms except in the 84th and 90th percentiles. They obtained a mean scaled score of 60.1 compared with the national mean of 58.1. Teachers College degree men obtained a mean score of 58.9 in comparison with a national mean of 56.0 for men, while degree women obtained a mean score of 62.0 as compared with a national mean of 60.3 for women.

In the general culture tests, Teachers College sophomores as a group, either equalled or exceeded national norms at the median and points below the median, according to Dr. Paul. They did not quite attain national norms, however, at points above the median. The Teachers College group obtained a mean score of 167.2 as compared with the national mean of 161.7. Teachers College degree men had a mean score of 180.3 in contrast with the national mean of 165.9, while degree women bettered the national mean 166.0 to 157.2.

In the general culture tests Teachers College participants were above the national norms in current social problems, history and social studies, science and mathematics and fell below national norms in literature

Audio-Visual Aids Is Theme Of ISEA Convention Exhibit

"VITALIZING THE CURRICULUM," through the use of audio-visual aids, will be the theme of the Teachers College demonstration-exhibit at the Iowa State Education association convention in Des Moines, November 3 to 5.

Three phases of audio-visual aids will be emphasized: audio-visual techniques and equipment; teacher- and pupil-made visual aids, and a materials file to show what teachers can collect for their own use.

The exhibit will be a "working" exhibit, according to Waldemar Gjerde, specialist in audio-visual education at the college. This will enable teachers attending the convention to operate the projectors, recorders and other equipment on exhibit.

Also in connection with the convention will be the annual alumni reunion dinner at 5 p.m. Friday, November 4, at the Moose Hall in Des Moines. The program has not been announced.

Placement Bureau Checks On Graduates' Efficiency

A PROGRAM OF CHECKING on its graduates' teaching efficiency has been carried on for some years by Teacher College, according to an article in a current issue of "School and Society" written by Dr. E. W. Goetch, placement director.

According to Dr. Goetch's article, public school superintendents and principals are requested to check a number of desirable teaching traits and evaluate personally the services of each graduate who has completed his first year of teaching.

A comparison is then made between the school officials' ratings and the evaluations made by their classroom supervisors when the new teachers were doing their student-teaching in the campus laboratory school.

Describing the check-up program as very effective in training teachers, Dr. Goetch

HOMECOMING

Changes Name And Function

THE REORGANIZATION of public relations activities at the college and the appointment of three new administrative staff members to the new department became effective July 1.

The bureau of publications became the bureau of public relations and information services with George H. Holmes continuing as director. Mr. Holmes acts as coordinator for all phases of public relations activities at the college, including general information and news services, publications, professional recruitment and alumni affairs.

Each of the three major areas of contact of the college with its publics—the general public, prospective students, and alumni and public school personnel—is directed by an administrative assistant responsible to the director of the new bureau.

Gail E. Myers, who received his master's degree from the University of Iowa in August, became assistant in charge of the alumni service. During the 1948-49 school year, Mr. Myers served as editor of The Daily Iowan, university newspaper, which won a national award for top management and research.

While in the service he was personnel sergeant-major for the 71st army air force communications group headquarters and also taught a USAFI course in English in New Caledonia. He also was a laboratory assistant and instructor for a year in the photography department of the university's school of journalism and last summer instructed a copy editing and headline course.

"Mr. Myers comes to the college highly recommended for his general all-around ability in the field of personnel and executive work," Mr. Holmes said. "In addition, he has had experience as a writer and photographer, having served as an area researcher for Time and Life from 1941 to

Gail E. Myers

1943; a photographer for the Honolulu publication of Yank magazine in the service; and photographer and researcher for a freelance writer for six months in Mexico."

Robert McGranahan, former sports publicity director in the bureau, returned from a year's leave of absence to become assistant in charge of information services. While working towards his master's at the University of Iowa last year, he was employed by the university's information service.

Jean Shoquist, who also received her M.A. from the university in August, is assistant in charge of the newly-created professional recruitment and public school relations office. As a graduate assistant in the school of journalism, Miss Shoquist super-

College Offers New Major In Rural School Supervision

MANY RURAL TEACHERS are expected to take advantage of the major in rural school supervision which was offered at Teachers College for the first time last summer. The new major qualifies graduates for county school supervisory positions, according to Dr. E. C. Denny, head of the department of education.

"The new major is especially designed for persons who have had teaching experience and one or two years of college work," Dr. Denny said. "Emphasis is being placed upon the subject matter, organization, methods and techniques of elementary education in the one-room rural, town and consolidated schools."

The curriculum covering the new major is flexible enough so college work already completed may be applied with little or no loss of credit. Only one student was enrolled in this field last summer, but several others have expressed interest in the new major.

"This new area of county school supervision is one of the most promising educational opportunities in Iowa at the present time," Dr. Denny asserted. "Within a few years most of the 99 counties in Iowa will be needing at least one county school supervisor. I have had inquiries from several county superintendents who are willing to pay from $3,000 to $4,000 annually to teachers qualified to provide this form of supervision."

In connection with this new major, a conference on supervision will be held at the college October 3 for county superintendents, according to Dr. Donald R. Scott, assistant professor of rural education.

The new major represents four years of college work and the bachelor of arts degree. To qualify as a supervisor a person must also have at least four years of successful teaching experience, preferably in rural areas, including town and consolidated schools.

Fuller Assumes Emeritus Status

THE RETIREMENT OF Albert C. Fuller, director of the bureau of alumni service and public school relations, was announced in July by President Malcolm Price.

Mr. Fuller assumed emeritus status July 1 after nearly 32 years of service with the college.

In announcing Mr. Fuller's retirement, President Price said, "He has given a lifetime of service to the cause of public education in Iowa and he has at the same time given freely of his energy and talents to general public service enterprises of the state."

Some of the groups with which Mr. Fuller has affiliated are: Iowa State Historical society, Iowa State Teachers association, National Education association and its department of School Administrators. He has also been past master of the Storm Lake Masonic lodge, district governor of Rotary International 11th district, past president of Cedar Falls Rotary and a vice-president of the Iowa Crippled Children's society of which he has been a member since its organization.

A graduate in 1899 of the then Iowa State Normal school, Mr. Fuller also finished work at the State University of Iowa.

In 1917 he was a member of a state committee which competed in and won a nationwide contest for contributing the best manuscript on "Character Education for High Schools in the United States." A prize of $20,000 was awarded to members of the prize-winning committee.

The following citation was read for Mr. Fuller when he received the medal initiating him into the Half-Century club in May, 1949:

"Albert Clark Fuller, class of 1899, served as high school principal and superintendent for fourteen years in the public schools of Iowa. He was high school and normal training inspector for the State Department of Public Instruction for four years. In 1918 he became extension specialist in rural education at the Iowa State Teachers College. The following year he accepted the position as associate director of extension service. In 1934 he became director of alumni service. He served as chairman of the committee for the Alumni Memorial Campanile and also for the establishment of the Seerley Foundation. A faithful friend; a loyal alumnus."

A. C. Fuller

Panther Sports Parade

WITH EVERY TEAM in the conference thirsting for Panther blood, Coach C. L. "Buck" Starbeck and his squad of gridders are in the midst of a rugged loop schedule. The North Central conference plays a round-robin schedule this fall for the first time in several years.

The grid squad reported for opening drills on August 29 and had almost a month of training before the first game with Western Michigan. Then follows an array of loop foes—five on successive weeks, one open date and the season finale at South Dakota university on Armistice Day.

Three home games highlight the schedule. The Panthers play three big loop games in as many weeks before the home fans. All of the battles will be under the lights. North Dakota university, Augustana and Morningside invade the Panther den in three straight Saturdays. Augustana is the Homecoming foe and Morningside the Dad's Day opponent. The North Dakota tilt will be Band Day.

Starbeck has been faced with the problem of replacing many outstanding players from the 1948 squad. Lost through graduation were Dick Gant, center; Harvey Wissler, guard; Jason Loving and Merritt Parsons, tackles; Graydon Lappe, end; Elvin Goodvin, blocking back, and Earl Page and Bob Williams, fullbacks. Wissler, Loving and Goodvin were on the all-conference teams last year. Loving was named the outstanding player in the loop.

On the other hand, fourteen 1948 Panther lettermen were on hand for the opening practice. Heading the list are a pair of players who were given all-conference recognition in 1948. Halfback Paul DeVan has been leading scorer in the loop for two straight years. Tackle Lee Wachenheim was named to the league defensive team. Other 1948 lettermen returning are Don Abney, center; Bob Miller and Hans Sorensen, guards; Bob Okren, tackle; Stan Brown and Don McDermott, ends; and Homer Bienfang, Ray Byrnes, Charles Cacek, Bud Fisher, Don Larimore and Bob Lee, backs.

Reports drifting from around the conference indicate that they will need every bit of strength they can muster to hold off the challenges of loop foes. From every training camp came optimistic reports. South Dakota U. and North Dakota U. appear to be the strongest at this writing but every club promises to be greatly improved. And all are pointing toward stopping the Panthers' records which stand at:

1. Six consecutive championships.
2. Thirty straight games against loop foes without a defeat since 1939.

freshmen will be upon all types of counseling—vocational, educational, religious and social,” Dr. Kelso said. “We will concentrate upon human counselling—self understanding, personal responsibility and social awareness—rather than the academic program,” he added.

Also for the first time this fall freshmen will not declare their major area of study until the completion of their first year's work.

Freshman students, however, will decide whether or not they want the two or four year curricula before registration. Those who follow the two year curricula will have the same faculty advisors during their second year, while the four year curricula students will be assigned an advisor in their

Reverend Uhlinger said. “Imagination dreams of the kind of world we want to live in and enterprise tackles the task of producing it.”

“That this nation under God’ was written by our founding father; ‘That this world under God’ confronts your imagination and enterprise as you devote your life to the work of a teacher,” he concluded.

Hedley Hepworth, celebrated British impersonator, furnished after-dinner entertainment for the graduates, faculty and guests at the annual dinner party August 17. major field after their first year of college work.

Transfer students with 30 or more hours of accepted transfer credit will be assigned an advisor in the department of their major field, according to Dr. Kelso.

“Students will be able to see their faculty advisors at any time about any personal problem,” the counselling coordinator declared. Under the new counselling system each student will see his advisor a minimum of four times the first quarter—before registration, during registration, during the fourth week of the quarter when the results of the placement test scores are explained and during the tenth week of the quarter to plan the student’s class schedule for the following quarter.

Students will also have the opportunity to see their advisors several times during each succeeding quarter, Dr. Kelso said.

Private offices will be available for confidential counselling.
