The Tempo Is Terrific

Cheerleader Roland "Red" Ellertson, photographed in action on the cover by Ralph Salisbury, symbolizes the opening of a new and busy year at Teachers College.

The largest fall quarter enrollment in the history of Teachers College—2,804 students—has set the tempo for 1947-48. Enrollment of men students also reached a new peak—1,405.

This fall's enrollment exceeds last year's by 354 and represents a 60 per cent increase over the pre-war average of 1,800.

Attesting to the increasing popularity of the teaching profession, some 90 per cent of enrollees are on teaching curricula.

Dr. Voigt Addresses Grads

Americans Must Get Off the "material" standard and back on the "moral standard" if civilization is to survive, Dr. Edwin E. Voigt, president of Simpson College, told 188 graduates at the Teachers College summer Commencement, August 21.

"In the tumult and thunder of battle, our minds tend to forget the importance of deeper things," he said.

"Here we now need a reconversion, and it is time to get off of the material standard and back on the moral standard if we are to have any hope that the coming years will produce a way of life that will have a measure of civilized living and ordinary decency and peace of mind."

Dr. Malcolm Price, president of Teachers College, presented awards and degrees. A total of 102 students received Bachelor of Arts degrees, with the remainder graduating from two-year and rural teaching courses.

Donald Phillips of Cedar Falls was awarded the Purple and Old Gold award for meritorious scholarship in music, and Nick Avelchach of Waterloo received a similar award for conspicuous achievement in athletics. The Alice O. Gordon award for outstanding scholarship in kindergarten-primary education went to Jane Childs of Manchester, Iowa.

The Rev. James E. Waery, pastor of the Congregational Church in Iowa City, delivered the sermon at Baccalaureate, August 17.
Highlighting musical activities at Teachers College this year will be a concert by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, Dimitri Mitropoulos conducting, March 30, 1948, in the Men's Gymnasium. Dr. Leland L. Sage is chairman of the lecture-concert committee sponsoring the program.

The New Stadium Dorm

At least 160 men will be on hand early for every football game this fall. Even if they don't go to the games, these College Joes are bound to hear them from their dormitory rooms in Stadium Hall, the new mezzanine floor dormitory for men in O. R. Latham stadium.

Stadium Hall includes 24 rooms, 20 of them with four double deck beds, and four designed as study halls. In addition there is a recreation room and study hall at the north end of the stadium balcony. Each room is 24 x 12½ feet and has individual steam heat.

Conference Time On Campus

Teachers College will be conference headquarters this fall, with five conferences scheduled on the campus within a period of three weeks.

First meeting is the two-day conference of Administrators, Principals and Supervisors on the Teaching of Arithmetic, September 26 and 27. Dr. W. A. Brownell of Duke University is to be the principal speaker.

Two groups will meet the following weekend. Teachers of Speech in Elementary and Secondary Schools will hold a one-day conference, October 4, as will the Teachers of Home Economic in Secondary Schools.

The Iowa Music Teachers Association will hold its state convention on the Cedar Falls campus October 12 and 13. Robert Goldsand, famed pianist and member of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music faculty, will appear on the program.

The fall convention schedule will conclude with the two-day Conference for Teachers of Art and Industrial Arts at the Elementary and Secondary Level, October 17 and 18.

Homecoming Set for October 25

The Green Light is on as far as plans for the 1947 Homecoming are concerned. The big day will be October 25.

Although plans are still in the preliminary stages as The Alumnus goes to press, the Homecoming Committee expects to see all you “alums” on the campus Homecoming eve, October 24. As a starter, there’ll be an outdoor pep rally and plenty of cheers for the Panthers.

The pep festivities will be over in ample time for you to take a tour of the campus dorms to view the Homecoming decorations, and to get to the Homecoming play.

This year the play will be “The Late George Apley,” by John P. Marquand and George S. Kaufman. Directors Hazel B. Strayer and Stanley Wood have indicated that this sparkling comedy, so popular as a book and as a movie, should be a hit. Curtain time will be 8:45 p.m.

On the day, Homecoming fans will spend the morning chatting with their former “profs,” meeting fellow “alums” over a cup of coffee or a coke, and talking with current TC-ers.

Early in the afternoon they’ll head for the O. R. Latham field to see Coach C. L. “Buck” Starbeck’s mighty Panthers in action. The Panthers will be on the prowl for another conference victory—this time over one of their perennial rivals, Morningside College. Game time will be 2 p.m. You can get your tickets the day of the game.

Half-time ceremonies will include the presentation of the Homecoming Queen, a comely coed selected by “T” Club members to reign over fall sports. The Teachers College band, directed by Karl Holvik, will present snappy maneuvers as part of the program also.

Members of the 1927 football squad will be at the game, with bells on, for they’re planning a special reunion that day. Louis Orr, a guard on the undefeated 1927 eleven and now a commercial instructor at McHenry, Ill., is in charge of arrangements. The ex-Panthers will have a luncheon at noon in the Commons.

Concluding the day will be the traditional Homecoming dance in the Commons.
The Panthers—1927 Version

This Is How The Panthers of 1927 looked back in the days when they piled up an undefeated season. They are planning to have a sizeable delegation on hand October 25 for a Homecoming reunion. Second row—Lynn Boyce, Yale Pearlman, Milton Delzell, Harold Stevens, Ernie Marshall, Merton Fuller, Melvin Fritzell. Third row—Harry Martin, Minard Stout, James Peterson, LaVasco Severs, George Hardy, Eldon Ravlin, Lynn Berryhill. Tickets will be on sale at special prices for all alumni and friends at the exhibit booth maintained by the college in the Coliseum.

The Annual Chicago Area Alumni Dinner will be held Saturday, November 15, according to Harold Jensen, president for 1947 and executive in charge of the meeting.

The place for the alumni dinner will be announced by direct mail between November 9 and 11.
"There is no place on the campus where I can be alone with my thoughts," said a student recently.

Such a situation will not exist a couple of years from now when a new chapel takes its place among the other buildings on the Teachers College campus. The class of 1922, which celebrated its silver anniversary this year, has recognized the need for such a chapel and has devoted itself to its realization.

This fall will mark the opening of a drive by the 25-year class for funds to finance the construction of a chapel suitable for personal devotion and meditation. Russell Lamson of Waterloo heads the committee and is assisted by Mrs. Irene Eaton, Edna Mantor, Mrs. Olive Allison Lillehei and Carrie Watson, all of Cedar Falls.

At the annual Alumni Reunion, May 25, President Malcolm Price spoke of the dream, which is in the hearts of many of us, for a lovely, small chapel to stand in the center of the campus.

Knowing that private funds would be required for its construction, the class of 1922 caught the vision and dedicated itself to its attainment.

Do we need such a building? We already have an active religious program at the college, many reply. There are religious groups offering students the opportunity to discuss problems in religion and modern-day living. Although students are encouraged to attend the church of their faith, there is a non-sectarian Sunday service in the College Church for those who wish it. The annual Religious Emphasis Week offers unusual opportunity for the consideration of religion. What more do we need?

I feel, however, along with the class of 1922 and President Price, that there is a need for broadening our religious program. Mr. Lamson, chairman of the chapel fund-raising committee, has asked me to put my views in writing.

The statement made by the young woman in search of a spot "where I can be alone with my thoughts" offers tangible proof of this need. Even in ordinary times on campus, when two students normally occupy a dormitory room, young people do need to have a place where they may meditate in a peaceful, soul-quieting atmosphere. This girl was expressing the desire of the student to be alone so that she could re-consider and perhaps re-evaluate life's many activities.

At Teachers College we believe that in such meditation and reflection lies the answer to many of the problems of individuals and nations. We believe that all of us need to "come apart and rest awhile" and gain refreshment of spirit for the building of a strong and true faith.

With such a chapel, there would be opportunity for individual meditation.

The chapel would also afford opportunity for small group worship. Deliberately designed for small groups, it will accommodate about 75 persons. As in the college church, the chapel would be non-sectarian.

Included in the Student Christian Association's program on the campus are "meditations" at which students gather for spiritual refreshment. These student-prepared and student-led services have been held in the large auditorium seating 1,300. Think what it would mean to have such services in a small, beautiful chapel!

In nurturing the religious loyalties of Iowa’s future teachers, opportunities for private and group worship must be central, not casual factors in the religious program of Teachers College.

We believe that the emphasis we give to religious life should be symbolized by a chapel of great beauty and appeal. We dare to believe that religion and adult education belong together in public as well as in private education. We feel that this belief will be accepted by alumni, students and faculty of Teachers College, and that it will be given expression in a chapel, centrally located on the campus, for the use of everyone in the college community.

This chapel will be more than the symbol of our conviction that religion and education belong together. It will be the summons to all of us to a vital faith in God, a faith that will endure though all other foundations of civilization crumble.

The class of 1922, on the occasion of its 25th anniversary, is making ready to carry the drive for the chapel on to completion. You will be hearing more from the committee which is seeking to raise nearly $50,000 for the small, beautiful chapel. When the time comes for you to do your part I know you will cooperate.

Mrs. W. R. Sandy (Maude F. Anderson, B.Di. '95) died August 3, 1947, at Puyallup, Washington. A graduate of the Palmer School of Chiropractics, Mrs. Sandy practiced in Sumner, Wash., for 22 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Sterrett (Mary Beth Timmerman, Kg.-Pri. '42) are the parents of twin daughters, Patricia Ann and Priscilla Lee, born August 17, 1946. Mr. Sterrett is now attending Teachers College. Their address: 39 E. Army Street, Sunset Village, Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Miss Wild Dies

A LONG-TIME MEMBER OF THE Teachers College faculty, Miss Monica R. Wild, head of the Women's Physical Education Department, died September 9, 1947, at the age of 56.

The daughter of a pioneer Cedar Falls family, Miss Wild joined the faculty in 1913 as an instructor in physical education. She served as acting head of the department during World War I and was promoted to a full professorship.

In 1931, she was made head of the present Women's Department of Physical Education.

An alumna of Teachers College, Miss Wild received her B.A. degree here in 1912. She was awarded the M.S. degree in 1930 and the Ph.D. in 1937, both by the University of Wisconsin.

A recognized leader in her field, she was co-author, with Miss Doris E. White of Teachers College, of the book, "Physical Education for Elementary Schools," and "The Iowa Plan of Physical Education."

She was a member of Pi Lambda Theta, the National Education Association, the American Physical Education Association, the Iowa Physical Education Association, and the national and central district Association of Teachers of Physical Education for Women in Colleges.

The PANTHER PARADE
By Bob McGronohan

As We Go To Press Coach C. L. "Buck" Starbeck and his four capable assistants are grooming 50 varsity football men for the nine-game grind. A fifth consecutive North Central conference title, a feat never accomplished by any team in the league's 21 years of existence, is the Panthers' goal. Another objective: adding four loop triumphs to their string of 21, which dates back to 1939.

The biggest day for you grads: the 26th annual Homecoming battle Saturday, October 25, against Morningside. The two teams will be meeting for the 19th time. The Panthers have won 10, lost 6, and tied 2.

Heading the list of returning lettermen are: Tackles Jason Loving and Glenn Wistey; Ends Ken Griffin, Jack MacAllister, and Don McDermott; Backs Bob Williams and Elvin "Dutch" Goodvin. Loving won honorable mention on the "Little All-American" team last fall. He also rated an all-conference berth with Williams.

Augmenting this group will be two 1945 lettermen, Guard Melvin Kuhl, and Halfback Paul DeVan. Also, Starbeck is counting upon several newcomers for added depth.

Vulnerable spots in Starbeck's tenth Panther team may be: in the center of the forward wall, and at the blocking back post, where no veterans are available.

Coach O. M. "Hon" Nordly's basketball quintet opens its 14-game campaign December 6, entertaining Drake University. Nine games are scheduled for the home court. Last year's two leading scorers, Forward Van Combs (234), and Center Don Dutcher (206) head the list of six returning lettermen. Several talented newcomers are expected to make strong bids for starting positions.

Freshman Johnny Revelle, ace Panther high jumper, tied for third in the junior division of the National AAU with a jump of 6 ft., 4½ in. The winning height: 6 ft 6 11/16 in.

Coach Dave McCuskey's wrestling team with four national title holders, Russ Bush, Bill Koll, Gerald Leeman, and Bill Nelson, are concentrating upon Olympic wrestling tactics.

Believing that the death rate on the highways can and must be reduced through education, Teachers College is now pioneering in a new field—safety education.

The first college in the country to offer a minor in safety education on the undergraduate level, Teachers College has transformed a barren 40-acre tract of land south of the main campus into a training ground for teachers of highway safety.

Bert L. Woodcock, the instructor in charge of the program, firmly believes that if motorists had been given lessons in driving instead of "just picking it up," there would be fewer accidents on the highways. Since studies have proved that trained drivers have about half as many accidents as those who aren't trained, this should ultimately reduce the highway death toll.

The object of the program is to provide high schools with teachers of safety education, who can teach today's teenagers the principles of highway safety. In addition, the course offers students, wives
A prospective driver, Mrs. Dorothy Vanderlip, practices parallel parking, while students Elberta Lutz and Marcia Drake hold the stanchion.

Pioneers in Highway Safety

Bert Woodcock, supervisor of the safety education course, explains what makes a car run to three aspiring motorists, left to right, Mrs. Dorothy Vanderlip, Elberta Lutz and Marcia Drake.
"Follow the white line," instructor Lyle Dodd advises driver Marcia Drake as she pulls away from the curb. Elberta Lutz is the interested observer.

of faculty members and townspeople the opportunity to learn how to drive a car.

In the first year, 44 students have completed the course necessary to prepare them to teach Highway Safety in the high school. More than a hundred enrolled for the course in driving and have gone on to receive state driver's licenses.

"This is only the beginning, however," Mr. Woodcock says. "The program is still in its infancy."

This fall the safety course will be coordinated with the work of the Campus School. A course in highway safety will be offered for all Campus School seniors, and those students who do not know how to drive will be required to learn.

The driving range, when completed, will contain all the hazards of modern traffic—sharp curves, traffic lights, city intersections, railroad crossing, etc. There will be stretches of paving, gravel and plain Iowa dirt.

Prospective teachers who are enrolled in Education 411, The Teaching of Highway Safety, instruct drivers-to-be how to operate a car safely. The college maintains two dual control cars, equipped with an extra set of clutches and brakes. The teacher goes right along with the student.

When the prospective driver has mastered control of the car well enough, he leaves the driving range for "practice" in city and country traffic.

Then comes the final test. It takes a pretty cool competent driver to pass this "final." Drivers have to handle the car exceptionally well before they are recommended for a driver's license. They must be experts in backing, parallel parking, city traffic, night driving and country driving. If they’re perfect, they score 146 points.

One tricky part of the test requires the student to follow a sharp "S" curve for 120 feet between painted lines, and then back along the same route without touching either the lines or stanchions placed around the curve. Anything under 39 seconds is considered good for the round trip. It costs the students two seconds every time they touch a line or knocks over a stanchion.

There are other ways to get a low grade on the test. If the driver goes through a red light, it costs four points. If he doesn’t signal for a left turn, he loses three points. Releasing the clutch too quickly deducts two points; stalling the motor cuts off another two points.

Altogether, the student can lose only 10 points. The instructor is at the student’s side every minute, keeping a close tab on every move. The general consensus seems to be, “You have to be good to pass this course. No cribbing allowed.”

Fortune Praises Leo Ranney

A Teachers College Alumnus, Leo Ranney, B.Di. '05, is acclaimed as one of the "most ingenious minds of his age," in the September issue of Fortune magazine.

"In the endless search for new supplies of oil and water, the ideas of Leo Ranney may prove to be more important than those of any other man alive," the article states. "For 40 years this Iowa-born engineer has devoted his energies to a basic revision of the processes of underground extraction."

Mr. Ranney, who now heads the Ranney Water Collector Corporation of New York, has developed a new technique of horizontal drilling for oil, coal and water.

"He has been called a dreamer for his unorthodox ideas on oil, coal and shale, but no one denies he has made the only real improvement in water-well design in millennia," Fortune comments.
A sure sign of autumn is the cluster of fallen leaves on the diagonal walk leading from the Twenty-Third Street entrance to the Auditorium and the main campus buildings.
