Admission Policy Announced

THE POLICY of the Iowa State Teachers College regarding admission of students for the fall quarter of this coming school year will definitely favor those prospective students planning to become teachers.

"We have two jobs to do in the immediate future," says President Malcolm Price. "We must help meet the urgent need to supply qualified teachers for the public schools, and we must do all in our power to help provide facilities for veterans seeking college training.

"The college has been faced with the question of whether to admit chiefly young men and women who will become teachers to train the oncoming generation or whether to admit great numbers of students seeking a general college education or preliminary training for professions other than teaching. Although the college will do its best to serve both interests, a definite preference will be given to students enrolling for teacher training."

In announcing the admissions policy for the fall quarter, 1947, President Price gave answer to questions now being asked with increasing frequency:

1. Is Teachers College going to turn down young women who graduate from high school in 1947 and who are definitely interested in teaching in favor of many veterans and others not interested in teacher training courses?

"No. We hope that it will not be necessary to make a choice between veterans and women students planning to teach. In any case Bartlett hall dormitory for women, with its facilities for housing 600 students, will remain devoted exclusively to first-year women."

2. Will capable young men who graduate from high school in 1947 be turned away?

"No, if they act promptly and complete their admission early. Increased facilities for men will be available by September, 1947."

3. Will prospective teachers already enrolled be crowded out by non-teaching students?

"No. Students with a real interest in teacher preparation will be given preference over other students, assuming their scholastic standing is satisfactory."

4. Will out-of-state students be admitted this coming year?

"Only a limited number will be admitted depending on the capacity of the college to accommodate them."

5. Does all this mean that students not interested in becoming teachers will be denied admission?

"No. The college has always admitted a limited number of students interested in work other than teaching, particularly those living within commuting distance of the campus. We hope to continue this policy."
"Move In," Vets Are Told

Forty-five GI's have moved into Sunset Village, the new housing unit on campus since November 4. Construction was started early in June, but 84 families that can still be accommodated, haven't had their "move in" orders yet, because of the college's inability to procure materials.

The quonset huts are equipped with full utility service and oil burning heaters. Each one is comprised of two bedrooms, kitchen, living room and bath. Located adjacent to highway 57 the village is only a few steps from campus.

Life in a Stadium

To house the overflow of single men at Teachers College a mezzanine floor dormitory is being built in the O. R. Latham stadium. The temporary dormitory facilities will provide accommodations for 160 men. Plans for the north end of the stadium balcony include a recreation room and study hall.

Cover Coeds Go Formal

In Line for Registration

Winter quarter registration was held Monday, Dec. 2. The majority of students, however, registered in advance from November 12-15. To speed up the procedure, no classes were scheduled November 14, and long lines of students jammed the corridors in the Auditorium and Gilchrist buildings.

The recess for the Christmas and New Year's holiday period began Friday, December 20, and lasted until January 6 when classes again resumed.

The ALUMNUS

Volume 31 January, 1947 Number 1

THE ALUMNUS is entered as second class matter at the post office in Cedar Falls, Iowa, under the act of August 24, 1912. Authority granted January 27, 1930. It is published and distributed quarterly in January, April, July, and October, by the Iowa State Teachers College. The ALUMNUS is mailed without charge to 18,600 alumni. As second class matter it is not forwardable without extra cost. Editorial and technical duties are handled by the Bureau of Publications.

Alumni Dinner
Is Des Moines Event

Chairs were pushed back, a woman adjusted her hat, gradually the buzz of table conversation drifted away into respectful silence. The president of Teachers College, Malcolm Price, had risen and was talking informally on the subject, "The Present and the Future."

This is the background atmosphere of the Alumni dinner held at 5:30 p.m., November 8 in the Grace Ransom tea room in Des Moines.

Other attractions of the dinner, which was one of many events on the Iowa State Education Association's convention calendar, were selections by the Teachers College quartet.

Jane Birkhead, soprano, Jane Mauck, contralto, James De Jonge, tenor, Harald Holst, bass, and Gloria Bonvechio, accompanist, constitute this year's quartet members. All are faculty members.

Lester McCoy, also of the Teachers College music department, led an "all sing" and before the 243 people left, voices were pitched to the school's loyalty tune.
A Portrait of Miss Anna E. McGovern, who at the time of her death, September 13, in Los Angeles was the oldest living Teachers College faculty member and one of the oldest living alumnae, has been hung in Miss Smith's education room in the auditorium building.

For 39 years Miss McGovern was an active faculty member, having been appointed as an assistant in methods in 1880 when she was a senior student at the college. When she retired with emeritus standing, July 16, 1919, she was a professor of education.

People Were Her Hobby

"People were her hobby" is the way Miss Amy Arey, Teachers College education professor and former student, remembers Miss McGovern's extra-curricular activities.

This hobby of hers reached great depths of humanitarianism, for everyone who knew Anna McGovern never forgot some service she had rendered to them or someone they knew.

A Waterloo priest still has the chalice which she gave to him when he first entered the priesthood. Fashioned of finely pounded solid gold, it is encrusted with tiny amethysts and rubies.

"She took delight in pushing up her frayed sleeves when the first World War was on," a faculty friend of hers recalls, "for all of her savings were being used at that time to send gifts to overseas servicemen."

Almost a mother confessor to those students of her faith who entered Teachers College she listened to their troubles, helped many pay their board or tuition bills.

One of the founders of the Newman Club, an organization formed for Catholic students, Anna McGovern gave them a large sized library and many religious pictures.

Collecting fine prints of religious masterpieces was another hobby of hers along with ardent study of fine English literature; Addison in particular was a great favorite.

On her return from a European tour, which even included an audience with the Pope, she presented one of Frau Angelica's prints to President H. H. Seerley who was a very good friend.

In fact as Miss Arey explained, "Anna was looked upon by her students as being as much a part of the institution as the president."

Quietly, without fanfare, Anna McGovern left Teachers College in 1919 for a haven of retirement in Santa Monica, California. Here she found that she had even more time to devote to her beloved Catholic Church.

Bertha Patt, retired art professor, presents the portrait of Miss McGovern which she received from Los Angeles to President Price while A. C. Fuller, alumni director, watches.
The winter sports cycle has brought basketball and wrestling into the spotlight at Teachers College again.

Six lettermen, Eddie Olson, Jim Maetzold, Don Dutcher, Dick Seidler, Jim Oberman, and Del Mully are among the 23 varsity basketball candidates.

High scoring Maetzold, Center Dutcher, and Guard Mully, all regulars last year, seem certain of starting assignments again this year.

Dutcher, a left-handed hook shot artist, who hit the net for 202 points last year, is the most versatile man on the squad. He can play any position.

Keep your eye on Charles Nordstrom, 6-6 pivot man, who is developing rapidly. Two newcomers, Norman Jesperson, Cedar Falls all-state prep school star, and Van Combs, are giving the veterans a battle for the front court positions. Both men measure 6-2.

Freshman Dave Williams, stellar defensive man, is making a strong bid for a starting guard position, along with Joe Segar and Jim Oberman.

Coach Dave McCuskey has experienced veterans available for the lower weight classes. From the 34 mat candidates he hopes to find capable performers for the 175-pound and heavyweight brackets.

Two freshmen, Richard Black, Ft. Dodge, and Bill Nelson, Eagle Grove, both state high school champions, have caught McCuskey's eye. Two 1943 lettermen, Jimmy Stoyanoff, and Harvey Clemmensen, are the leading contenders in the 121 and 165 pound classes.

Three men in the lower weights, Gerald Leeman, Bill Koll, and Russell Bush, participants in the national wrestling tourney last spring, head the list of returning lettermen. Leeman and Koll were national champs in the 128 and 145 pound classes, while Bush was runner-up in the 136 pound bracket.

The mat schedule, although incomplete, is certain to include the best teams in the Big Nine, Big Six, and Midwest conferences.

A Home Away From Home

Five Cots and a Stove—that's the equipment the home management house had at the beginning of the 1946 Spring quarter when five home economics majors moved into their new quarters.

Today the house has all the paraphernalia of an up-to-date Teachers College dormitory, and what's more the girls can cook and eat their own meals there.

The purpose of the dwelling is to fill a State requirement for a vocational home economics teaching certificate, as well as to give home economics majors actual practice in housekeeping.

Joyce Nelson of Cedar Falls, Charlene Woolverton of Cedar Falls, Helen Tucker of West Branch and Ione Linn of Atalissa, all of whom are pictured in various home management house activity scenes on these pages, were the fall quarter residents. Miss Lela Mae Ping, a new instructor at the college this year, is the girls' adviser and she also lives at the house.

"Each week we divide our duties," Helen Tucker explained when asked what her particular responsibilities were. "This week, for example, I'm the cook, Joyce is house manager, Charlene, the assistant cook, and Linn is housekeeper. Then next week I'll be housekeeper, etc."

"Oh, it's a chore to get up at 6:30 on Mondays when you've been away for a weekend," Ione couldn't help but comment.

The girls are up with the roosters at 6:30 every a.m., and there is no paid bugler to sound the alarm. Breakfast must be served by 7 since three of the girls have 8 o'clocks.

Lunch is more or less a community affair with every girl helping. In the afternoon none of the girls has too much time to spend in coke dating for there's housecleaning to be done. Rugs are vacuumed twice a week and the upstairs is cleaned every other day.

"To Market, to Market" go Joyce Nelson and Helen Tucker. Right now they're wondering if there's money for Birdseye delicacies.

"What really takes time," Charlene said, "are the incidentals like flower arranging, dusting each day, emptying the garbage, carrying out the clinkers, etc."

Dinner is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. and for the cook and her assistant that sometimes means that preparations must be underway by at least 4 p.m. Shopping for the week is done on Saturday mornings by the girls assigned to the duty, but the remainder of Saturday and Sunday is duty free.

"Menus are planned to cover a week's time," Miss Ping stated, "and I check them before the girls do the actual grocery shopping."

"Menu planning in these days gives the girls real experience," Miss Ping believes, "for it calls for ingenuity to find substitutes for meat, shortening, and sugar."

One particular chore which gives the girls quite a headache is bookkeeping, and with a different coed tabulating each week complications are a certainty. This duty is one of the house manager's responsibilities.

She must keep three books—in one are listed all of the general items bought, in the second,
Cook for the week, Charlene Woolverton, lets her graham cracker pie cool while she studies a menu. In the picture below she is taking time to daub paint on the study table in the project room. This is one of her part-time duties.

Each food item must be tabulated under a group heading. Canned goods, for example, is one necessary classification. Then in the third book all miscellaneous items for which cash has been paid, must be listed.

"The house manager is also dubbed the official bill payer," Miss Ping stated.

To the Spring quarter residents must go some of the praise of being the pioneer interior decorators of the house. Out of a $500 expense account from Teachers College, and with the aid of the home management lecture class and the housefurnishing classes, they remodeled all of the eight rooms in the house.

Maezene Hall, a home economics major from Cresco who lived in the house the Spring quarter, recalls, "the bunk beds in the three upstairs bedrooms are ladderless because they came from the prisoner of war camp at Algona," and she continued, "the refrigerator came from there too."

All of the dressers in the house were furnished by Bartlett hall and the bedroom chairs and study tables were navy donations.

Miss Ping explained, "Some of the furniture was moved over from the home management apartment which could only serve the needs of one or two girls in a quarter's time."

A special project of the home management class was the arrangement of drawer and cupboard sections in the kitchen. The college carpenter then sawed and planed the actual niches desired.

Drapes and trinkets were picked out by the housefurnishings class and each group of students in the class was assigned a different part of the house to decorate.

Five girls, for example, were allotted a certain percentage of the total sum of $500 and told to beautify the bathroom. They even painted it.

The girls living in the house each had a project to complete. They made the spreads and drapes which the housefurnishing's class picked out as being adequate in color, material, type of design, and price for each of the three bedrooms.
"Our work, however, didn't stop there," Maezene Hall pointed out, "for all of us tackled those little jobs which don't sound impressive when taken singly, but when added together, they give a room personality—little things like painting the open shelved book niches by the fireplace a different color inside."

In the midst of all the decorating confusion, fun still prevailed, and even the worst predicaments were accompanied by laughs.

One time when the girls were all enjoying fresh strawberry sundaes, the epicurean finale of their backyard picnic, a whole string of garter snakes slithered across the luncheon cloth.

Then there was the week when everyone traveled a newspaper path around the house—for the one and only vacuum cleaner was in the repair shop.

Maezene Hall remembers the time when it was her duty to clean out the stoker, "I'd go down and carefully sweep up all of the clinkers that were inside, out onto newspapers and when I got through I was ready for two baths."

She didn't know that there was a gadget in the stoker that lifted the clinkers out, and that every little crevice really didn't need dusting.

Even the girls doing the marketing on Saturday morning had troubles. One time they didn't notice that the grocery store clerk had put a carton of eggs at the bottom of one of the paper sacks, carefully buried under a load of oranges and pound of meat, etc. After a few blocks, the bottom of the sack became a soggy mess and a trickle of yellow egg yolk colored the sidewalk.

On one of the scheduled guest nights not only the girls, but the guests as well, were relegated to the kitchen. The painters were still swishing brushes in the living and dining rooms.

Speaking of parties, each quarter the home-management house has several. Helen Tucker was hostess at the October 9 formal dinner when Dr. Sutherland, Anita Louise Dowler, and Katherine Lineberry, all of the home economics department, were guests. The alumnae tea and open house which followed the homecoming game October 19 was a group project.

Directors Are Entertained

Other quarter affairs included a guest dinner, as well as two suppers, one a waffle, and the other a buffet. Charlene was hostess at the guest dinner when the directors from Lawther and Bartlett hall were entertained. Joyce presided at the waffle supper and Ione was in charge of the buffet supper arrangements.

Boy friends too, are occasionally entertained at the co-op house, and the hours are the same as those of any women's dormitory.

If a girl is interested in registering for the four hour credit course which costs $90 per quarter for board and room expenses, she must first have had a course in meal planning, or if she's a non-home economics major, she may substitute course No. 471 called, "Food For the Family."

At the present time, however, only home economics majors who are upperclassmen can live in the house. Someday when housing priority becomes just a dictionary term, then maybe there will be more houses patterned after the Campus street home.

As an after dinner treat Ione Linn of Atalissa, Helen Tucker of West Branch, and Joyce Nelson of Cedar Falls are roasting marshmallows. No, they aren't telling where they got them.
Our Faith
Has Seven Days

In the days of rising divorce rates, social unrest, strikes, priorities, housing shortages, smaller buying-power dollars, and all of the other eruptions of post-war living, scores of students at Teachers College are finding point and direction for their lives in religious faiths that last seven days instead of a few hours on Sunday morning.

This was the verdict recently disclosed when students from nine closely knit religious groups were quizzed on why they had joined these organizations and what they had given, as well as received from them.

Joy Ilene Parry, of Cedar Falls, who is a member of Sigma Eta Chi, the national girls collegiate club for women of Congregational denomination stated, "One of the reasons why I joined is because of the fellowship with other students."

"It's a good feeling to know you have been of service to others," she continued, "for one of the organization's projects is looking after the children's welfare in the Lotts Creek school in Cordia, Kentucky." This Christmas the girls sent the children boxes of stuffed animals which they had made and eatable goodies.

Willa Mae Johnson of Essex, a member of Theta Epsilon, the Baptist's girls club for women, had this to say, "It seems like I'm going to a home when I go to the house for meetings, parties, etc."

As for Lavona Maurine Lee of Buffalo Center, she just couldn't put her feelings into words. Her special likes were the parties which her club planned, and the speakers they invited during the school quarters.

"There is a feeling that there is true worth in living where a church provides an organization 'especially for you' away from home," was Meta Muller's way of expressing her feelings on Gamma Delta, National Association of Lutheran students. Meta is from Osage.

Chet Williams of Cedar Falls, a Methodist, "just naturally" joined Delta Sigma Theta, the boys religious club and he likes "the world student service the club carries on." This year the Delta Sigs are assisting Polish students.

Of the Teachers College religious organizations studied, the following are girls clubs, Theta Epsilon, Kappa Pi, the national Methodist organization, Phi Chi Delta, for Presbyterians, and Sigma Eta Chi.

Gamma Delta (Lutheran Missouri Synod) has both men and women members as does the Catholic's Newman Club, and the L.S.A., abbreviation for Lutheran Student Association. The latter includes all Lutherans who are not members of the Missouri synod.

Religious clubs for men are Delta Sigma Theta, and the Presbyterian Men's Dinner Club.

All of the organizations except two, are members of national groups, meaning that there are sister and brother affiliates on many other university and college campuses.

The fact that the clubs are national was a reason given by some students for joining them. Then again, the Presbyterians feel that they are following Christian standards by not being tied to the social "apron strings" of a national body.

"Just what does a girl or boy do to belong to one of these organizations, and what does..."
Newman club members get together for a Sunday "fun" night in the basement of St. Patrick's church.

Guess where these LSA students pictured below are going with the food baskets and popcorn balls.

he or she do when they become members?" are easily answered questions.

Since the boys and girls clubs, as well as the chapters with mixed members, follow much the same pattern of organization, a study of a girl's life in Kappa Phi, the Methodist girls club, dating from the time of pledging to the final initiation ceremony would give a birdseye view of the living structure of each group.

At a fall tea, the dates of which are announced way ahead of time in the College Eye, student newspaper, a girl has a chance to become acquainted with the girls in Kappa Phi.

Through the medium of a short skit, these active members of the club tell the potential pledge of opportunities in Kappa Phi. Above all else, the idea of fellowship with her fellow Methodists is stressed along with the training she will receive for leadership in church life.

The club's pin is displayed, as well as the colors of the organization, pure white, the green of the pine, and the blue of the sky.

A delegate who attended the Kappa Phi's national convention in Northfield, Minn., June 25, 1946, is introduced and she tells the story of Kappa Phi's giant white candle which decorates the tea table. (photograph on page 12) Reason behind the telling is to give the girl the feeling that through joining a national organization she has a chance to meet and compare ideas with other students besides those in her chapter.

"There were twenty-nine candles on a large table covered with a frosting white cloth at our last convention meeting," the girl explained. "Each candle represented a chapter of Kappa Phi; there was one for Upsilon, the Teachers College chapter."

These candles were the birthday candles of Kappa Phi, and as a memento of the occasion we were allowed to bring ours back to Cedar Falls and share its lighted beams with our fellow Kappa Phi's."

Copies of the club's magazine, the "Candle Beam", contain news of all chapters and are available for perusal.

Before a girl leaves, the hostesses make sure that they have met and talked to each girl. If a girl is interested in joining Kappa Phi,

- "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" sing members of Phi Chi Delta, the club for girls of Presbyterian preference, at their Monday night meeting.

- Each year the girls of Sigma Eta Chi, national Congregationalist girls' club, make toys for the small children of Lotts Creek school at Cordia, Kentucky.
she may talk to the club’s sponsor and counselor, Mrs. Ella Bradford or to the president, Eloise Baer of Tipton.

Then the girl is invited to attend the two Monday night meetings held each month so that she may meet the actives in a less formal atmosphere.

Finally after a series of informal gettogethers she is pledged. From that day forward, the girl will try to be a Kappa Phi in all ways — by learning about the chapter and the national organization, in memorizing club songs, Bible verses and attending church. She takes part in business meetings, and discussion programs of girls’ problems, campus problems, national and world citizenship and peace, etc.

She may serve on party committees and work on special home and foreign mission projects. At the beginning of the second quarter, she is initiated, and becomes a member of Kappa Phi.

After the beautiful ceremony, with candles all aglow, life settles back into routine, and the girl has a chance to assume more leadership in her organization. What she learns by serving as an officer will stand her in good stead when she wants to conduct a business meeting later on in life. Through social contacts she will also learn to be at ease with people.

Core of every club’s existence is the schedule of activities planned for each quarter. If they aren’t interesting or do not meet the needs of the students, attendance will drop accordingly.

The Delta Gammas, for example, meet every Sunday night at their Lutheran Student Association home, 2321 Walnut Street, for a regular series of programs. On the first Sunday of the month a business meeting is scheduled, and a guest speaker is invited; on the second Sunday a student leader directs a topical discussion; on the third Sunday, cultural and aesthetic heritages of the Christian church are interpreted.

Albrecht Durer’s “Praying Hands,” Leonardo DeVinci’s “Last Supper,” and Rembrandt’s “Christ on the Cross,” for example, were some of the religious masterpieces studied in the fall quarter.

Feature of the fourth Sunday is an open forum led by Edgar Brammer, minister and chapter sponsor. Fall quarter social events included an October hayride and a November roller skating party in Waterloo.

Dorothy V. Winter, sponsor of Phi Chi Delta, made an interesting study of what happened to some of her girls after they had finished school—a study which sums up the importance of the church club’s role as a guide to Christian living.

Out of a total of 339 members, she discovered that “four girls are married to ministers, one is a medical missionary in China, two are teaching in National mission schools, one is a full time Christian Education worker, one is teaching in Canada, one in Alaska, and one in Venezuela.

“Out of the 339, 138 are married. Only two of these women are divorced.”

● It’s Kappa Phi tea time. Kappa Phi is the national girls’ organization for Methodist preference women.
NEWS BRIEFS

Miss Jessie Ferguson who has been a circulation and reference librarian at the college for 21 years, retired and is now living with a nephew in Ashland, Va. Mary Dietrich, formerly of the catalogue department, took over her duties.

A music treat for Teachers College faculty and students was the arrival on campus Dec. 6 of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Eugene Goossens, famous English composer and orchestra conductor.

A courtship and marriage conference held at Teachers College from Sept. 30 to Oct. 2, was lead by Mrs. Evelyn Millis Duvall, advisory editor of "Parents Magazine."

Five new instructors were appointed in the Campus school—Elsie V. Holliday, Marjorie Loris DeFigh, Albert A. Potter, Mary Margaret Schmitt, and Eleanor McBride.

Dora E. Kearney, 21-year member of the Teachers College faculty, resigned. She was supervisor of mathematics in the Campus school. At the Des Moines Iowa State Education Association convention, she was elected president of the Iowa Association of Mathematics Teachers.

Henry Harris, assistant professor of piano, gave his first full length recital November 5 since his release from the navy the first of last year.

Speaker at the Interfaith Emphasis conclave, Nov. 3, 4, and 5 was Rabbi Robert L. Katz, an ordained rabbi of the Hebrew Union College.

Robert Goldsand, who heads the piano department of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, presented a public recital Oct. 21 in the college auditorium. His was the concluding number on the Iowa Music Teachers Association convention program.

Dr. Edward Kurtz, head of the College music department, and Olive Barker were reelected to offices in the Iowa Music Teachers Association as president and secretary.

More Teachers at T.C.

EIGHTEEN MORE FACULTY MEMBERS were added to the Teachers College staff in the fall quarter.

Albert J. Croft, who has his master's degree in speech from Northwestern University, is teaching public speaking.

Katherine Lineberry, Anita Louise Dowler, Marilyn C. Parks, and Lela Mae Ping, are all new home economics instructors. A food and nutrition teacher, Miss Lineberry received her M.S. this fall from the Virginia Polytechnic Institute at Blacksburg, Va.

Miss Dowler is teaching a foods course and has charge of the family relationship, housing and equipment courses planned for the school year. The clothing classes are being taught by Marilyn C. Parks, a Teachers College graduate living in Waterloo who is a temporary instructor.

In charge of the home management house is Lela Mae Ping who received her master of science degree from the University of Illinois.

Three Teach Math.

New members of the mathematics department include Glenadine Gibb, Fay Layne, and Willis Pickard. Miss Gibb received her M.A. degree from George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn., and is teaching freshman mathematics.

A former instructor in the Keokuk, Iowa, high school, Fay Layne is working with teachers of elementary arithmetic.

Pickard, a former lieutenant commander in the Navy, is teaching advanced mathematics and geometry. Prior to entering service in 1942, he taught at the University of Missouri.

In the music department Gloria Bonvechio, Martha Johnson, Jane Mauck, and John Mitchell, are all new faculty members. An instructor in piano, Miss Bonvechio taught at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music after receiving her bachelor of music and master of music degrees from the school.

Holder of the bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees from Hamline University, St. Paul, Minnesota, Martha Johnson is an instructor in piano. Jane Mauck, a voice instructor, received her bachelor of music degree from Drake University and is working for her master's degree.

An instructor in music education, John Mitchell received his bachelor of music degree from Oberlin College in Ohio. He is also working for his master’s degree.

New physical education instructors include Dorothy Moon and Phebe Scott. Miss Moon, who taught for three years at Macomb, Ill., obtained her M.A. degree from Northwestern University. Miss Scott received her B.S. degree from the University of Michigan and is a candidate for the master's degree at Columbia University.

Another new instructor is Dorothy Miller of the science department. Miss Miller received her M.A. degree from Indiana University and her Ph.D. degree last summer at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

Louis Bultena, Lyman H. Harris, and Reynold Wik are new social science instructors. Economics and sociology classes are taught by Dr. Bultena. He holds the M.Ph. degree and Ph.D. degree from the University of Wisconsin, and was an assistant professor at the University of Wyoming.

Lyman Harris is teaching European history. Prior to his service with the Navy he was an associate professor at the University of Omaha.

Reynold Wik, an American history instructor, was a teaching assistant at the University of Minnesota where he received his master's degree.

Dr. Goetch Announces Fee Exemption Policy

By E. W. Goetch, Director of Placement Bureau

The Placement Bureau of the Iowa State Teachers College has been operating for eighteen years in the interest of graduates and former students of the college.

During this time all current year graduates of the college have received free registration as well as free placement services. All former students and alumni who desired the services of the bureau were required to pay a registration or a reregistration fee of $3.00. This fee was used to cover the cost of collecting recommendations and for compiling or recompiling official confidential credentials in behalf of the registrant; all placement services rendered were free.

The administration of the Iowa State Teachers College and the State Board of Education have made it possible through other avenues of support whereby no fees will be exacted from former students and alumni of the college who desire to register or reregister with the college placement bureau. This fee exemption policy will become effective for all 1947-1948 teacher placements.

Register By Feb. 15

All former students as well as all former graduates who are teaching and are interested in obtaining new teaching positions should register with the college placement bureau by February 15. One year of attendance at the Iowa State Teachers College is prerequisite. Exceptions are made in behalf of those students attending the college who are graduates from other colleges or who have taken a year of work in residence at some other college.

Persons who have completed their registration or whose official confidential credentials have been brought up to date and who are available to accept a teaching position are placed on the bureau's active list of candidates and are thus in a position to obtain free placement services. As soon as a candidate obtains a position the bureau should be notified of this fact.

This new policy of free registration for all graduates, teaching alumni, and former students will make it possible for the placement bureau to render greater and more efficient services to all registrants of the bureau and to all employing school officials who are interested in obtaining qualifications in behalf of candidates who have received their training at Teachers College.

Place 1000 Yearly

All services rendered in behalf of a registrant will be by direct contact with the employing officials.

During the past an average of 1000 new teaching placements have been made each year. These eighteen thousand new teaching positions were obtained by registrants through direct help of the Placement Bureau.

Not only does the bureau receive requests to recommend teachers from practically all of the towns and cities of Iowa but from most of the states, as well as from Alaska, Cuba, Hawaii, Panama, Puerto Rico, and South America. During the past year calls came to the placement bureau from the American zone of occupation in Germany.

Never has there been such a demand for graduates of the Iowa State Teachers College as at present. Never have the better and the more highly cultured citizens of every community been so aware of the present teacher shortage and the need for well trained teachers as they now are. This growing change of attitude is bound to result in a higher respect for the teaching profession, in better teacher tenure, in better social security for teachers, and in salary increases for all teachers commensurate with their training and the importance of their work.
Martin L. Grant (associate professor of biology) hasn’t grown up so much that he still thinks of studying as an avocation. "I went to school for several years and got into the habit," was his way of explaining the phenomenon. One of his specific professional vocations is animal raising which needless to say interests his older daughter. At one time or another they have had as pets: monkeys, horses, mules, donkeys, rabbits, guinea-pigs, porcupines, mice, rats, hamsters, gophers, woodchucks, squirrels, chipmunks, bats, moles, and hawks—just to mention a few.

"I have learned in whatsoever state I am to be content," a quote attributed to St. Paul, has been adopted as part of John W. Charles’ (professor of education) philosophy of life. There are still roving ambitions in his mind, however, for he would like very much "to go downtown in Singapore at night when all the cutthroats are at work." However, since a GI told him that Singapore was the best behaved city in the Orient he’s rerouted his dream tour to include India.

"There’s a place for everyone in this world," L. V. Douglas (head of the Commercial Department) believes, "Even if it’s just to serve as a horrible example."

Grace A. Van Ness (a physical education instructor) likes the type of fiction and the newsy articles printed in the Saturday Evening Post.

This fall Myron E. Russell (associate professor of wood-wind instruments) added another sport to his list of hobbies when he bought a gun. "Any duck roasts yet?" might well be the question of the week.

There’s plenty of meaning in this thought of Melvin Schneider’s (supervisor of instrumental music in the Campus School) so much so that we feel it deserves more than honorable mention in this column "Physical things are not ends in themselves, but means to be used creatively for man’s spiritual or mental development."

M. J. Wilcox (professor of education) and family literally played Robinson Crusoe when they spent the first week in September on a Mississippi river island near Guttenberg. Yes, they had a cottage—a fact which doesn’t take too much glamour away from the tale we hope.

Appalled and yet intrigued, Dr. Charles T. Leavitt (assistant professor in the social science department) is trying to solve the problem of socializing what he calls the "barbaric" human nature displayed at times by his two children, Patricia Ann 6, and Mary Ellen, 8.

Mrs. S. Bailey (of the science department) liked the picture in which Bette Davis plays twins, "The Stolen Life," so much that she would like to recommend it as a movie of the month.

"In Will Durant’s 'Life of Greece' which I am now reading, I discovered that peek-a-boo bosoms were old stuff 5000 years ago on the island of Crete. Fascinating, eh?" inquires Richard L. Beard (new assistant professor in the education department). At the risk of seeming naive, he also confesses that he gets more sense from an Horatio Alger tale than he does from persistent study of Joyce’s "Finnegans Wake."

Student delighter, Herbert V. Hake (program director of KXEL) who illustrates his radio technique lectures with caricatures drawn impromptu on the blackboard, is now brushing up on the use of colored chalk, water-color, etc. He’s enrolled in a Cedar Falls art class which meets regularly every Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the town’s art gallery. His wife goes along, too, and they both sit in different parts of the studio, ignoring each others’ masterpieces for an evening.

Marie Hjelle, B.A. '25, M.A. '31, Columbia University, has accepted a position as organizer of a teaching department in the Pressly Memorial Institute at Assiut, Egypt.
"You Learn T'do B'doin,'" Mrs. John W. Vanderwilt (Charlotte Keating H.Ec. '19) remembers hearing Professor Walters repeat again and again to his history of education class.

Mrs. Vanderwilt literally took his philosophy to heart when she married a geologist in 1922 and started to establish the record of moving 22 times in 14 years.

In the first 5 years of their married life they moved once each year and John Vanderwilt received his Ph.D. in geology from Harvard.

Only two homes were available in Roswell, N. Mex. where Mr. Vanderwilt's first real assignment took the family. In the one house that a geologist's salary could afford there were other inhabitants besides the immediate family. When they moved in, the kitchen oven was useless because mice had built nests in the lining and hundreds of cockroaches scrabbled over the kitchen linoleum every night and thrived on poison.

One day Mrs. Vanderwilt shoved her bare foot into the toe of her bedroom slipper only to find that a cockroach had snuggled in first. Every time she bathed one popped out of the bathtub's overflow drain and wiggled his antennae.

Another of the Vanderwilt's temporary homes was in Marble, Colorado. Here she recalls "a teakettle murmured softly to itself, wood crackled in the stove and there was always a lingering fragrance of baked apples, gingerbread or cookies in the four-room house. In stormy weather a lonely little banshee wailed in a most appealing manner around the chimney."

Traveling Vanderwilt's Stop at Denver

Joanna, Christine, Dad, Mom, (Charlotte Keating H. Ec. '19) Bill, and Spot Vanderwilt pose June '34 on the porch of their Questa, New Mexico cabin.

January
“There were no movies, and radio reception was poor during the day, so the children (William born in 1925, Christine in 1927 and Joanna in 1930) made all sorts of toys from bits of wood, wire, and nails which they found in the woodshed. We all learned to sit quietly and watch the changing form and color of the mountains as the sun and shadows passed over them. Only those who have experienced it can understand how soul satisfying it is just to listen to that vast silence.”

When Mr. Vanderwilt decided to strike out on his own and rounded up some “moly” mine investigating after a four-year series of rundown houses and ancient coal ranges, the family trekked back to New Mexico—to a tiny settlement north of Taos called Questa. Here they rented two furnished cabins. In one they set up a sheepherder’s stove and put their dishes and pans on makeshift shelves along the wall. In the bedroom cabin, the hard beds were made up and their clothes were hung behind a gaudy curtain strung across one corner.

“The walls were of logs chinked in with adobe. The floor was of wide boards with cracks half an inch wide between them, down which the children were always dropping coins or marbles,” Mrs. Vanderwilt writes. “However, they could easily crawl under the house from the outside and retrieve the lost items.”

The biggest problem was food. Naturally it took on a Mexican flavor, hot and spicy. Because fresh meat was tainted when delivered, Mrs. Vanderwilt relied on smoked ham, bacon and bologna. A typical supper consisted of noodles covered over with a sauce that was neither Italian, Mexican, or Chinese—probably Vanderwilt.

Soon the Vanderwilts all discovered that there are special climate problems when a family lives in a ’dobe hut.

Mrs. V. recalls one heavy rain and hail storm when, “the tar paper roof was peppered full of holes by hail and little puddles splashed all over the floor. Finally the water began to run down the east wall, taking with it thin layers of the lovely pink ’dobe.”

Scandinavian Expert Here

Dr. Henry Goddard Leach, the president of the American-Scandinavian foundation, spoke in the Teachers College Auditorium December 16 and 17.

Subject of his Monday evening talk was "Scandinavian versus American Democracy", and "Scandinavian Contributions to Peace," was the Tuesday morning assembly topic.

Recently returned from an extensive tour in Scandinavia, Dr. Leach stopped at the college on his tour of various chapters of the American-Scandinavian foundation. He is also addressing branches of the Foreign Policy Association.

This year Dr. Leach was asked to organize the third Nobel Fete in New York. He interrupted his life work for international education between Scandinavia and America to edit the "Forum" and "Century" magazines from 1922 to 1940. The last book that he edited is called, "A Pageant of Old Scandinavia".
rushing offense and second to Holy Cross in pass defense. The Panthers placed fifth among the nation’s leaders in total defense, and seventh in total offense. Only in punting and passing did the Panthers fail to rate among the top ten teams in the nation.

The Panthers were one of two teams considered to meet San Jose State in the annual Raisin bowl game in Fresno, Calif., New Year’s day.

A. L. “Pudge” Camarata, leading Panther scorer and ground gainer was chosen on the third Little All-American team. Tackle Jason Loving and Center Will Riordan rated honorable mention.

Seven Starbeck-men, five linemen and two backs, won positions on the first all North Central conference eleven, which was picked in a poll of loop coaches.

Ends Cy Bellock and Nick Avelchas, who won similar recognition in 1942, were selected again.

Although Riordan played center for the Panthers, he was selected for a guard post on the mythical eleven, a position he had played at Notre Dame in 1941. Senior Dick Bowen won the other guard berth, and Loving was picked at one of the tackles. Camarata and Bob Williams won first team backfield assignments.

Tailback Dave Williams and Guard Paul Salzman received honorable mention for their outstanding play.

A total of 23 football men were awarded major letters at the annual gridiron banquet given by President Malcolm Price and members of the athletic board.
