CONTRIBUTORS

MICHAEL T. HEANEY received his bachelor's degree in economics from the University of Northern Iowa in 1993 and his master's degree in public policy in 1995. As an undergraduate, he was a member of the Economics Club, president of Omicron Delta Epsilon (the Economics Honor Society), and received the Leavit Economics Scholarship in 1992. He also participated on the Debate Team, conducted research for the Iowa Space Grant Consortium, and served as a peer minister at the Wesley Foundation. As a UNI graduate student, he served as a research assistant for the Institute for Decision Making. He is currently an Associate Instructor of Political Science at Indiana University at Bloomington where he is working on his doctoral degree in economics. "Infrastructure and Local Economic Development," an article Michael co-authored with UNI economics professor Janet Rives, appeared in a 1995 issue of Regional Science Perspectives.

JAMIE HARNEY graduated with highest honors from the University of Northern Iowa in 1993 with a major in finance and a minor in economics. Originally from Williamsburg, Iowa, she attended Iowa State University for three semesters before transferring to UNI. As an undergraduate, Jamie participated in the UNI Investments Club and completed two full-time internships. Following graduation, she continued her studies at the University of Iowa in the combined J.D./M.B.A. Program.

DEAN EYLER was a Presidential Scholar during his years at the University of Northern Iowa. Like Michael Heaney, he was also a member of the debating team. Dean received his bachelor's degree from UNI in 1993 with a major in political science and a minor in economics. He will graduate in May 1996 from the University of Iowa Law School, and has been selected as the law clerk for Judge Donald P. Lay, senior circuit judge for the United States Court of Appeals. Following his year as clerk for Judge Lay, he will join the Minneapolis law firm of Dorsey and Whitney.

KELLY CLEVELAND, a native of Mason City, Iowa, majored in economics and minored in mathematics as a UNI undergraduate. She was active in the UNI Symphony Orchestra and the Economics Club. Kelly graduated in 1994 and will complete her master's degree in economics from Colorado State University in May 1996. She plans to continue her studies toward a doctoral degree in economics with the goal of teaching in a university.

CHRISTINE HENLE comes from Rowley, Iowa, and graduated from the University of Northern Iowa in 1995 with a bachelor's degree in psychology. She is currently working toward her doctoral degree in industrial and organizational psychology at the University of Northern Colorado at Greeley.
