"Taste" is BIG success

Framed by Flags

Flags from the nations represented at "Taste of Postville" frame the crowd at Sunday's event. Here an audience of several hundred is enthralled by the magical ability of Nathan Suckow. Over 1,000 "tasters" enjoyed food from countries around the globe. Many vendors ran out of food early as the crowds were larger than anticipated. When not eating the crowd was treated to a wide array of entertainment as varied as the cuisine.

Lumpia

Annabelle Dalangin prepares lumpia (egg rolls) at the Pilipino Booth at "Taste of Postville." In the background is Lilia Tinderholt. Also at the booth were Gloria McMullan and Elvira Rowland. These Pilipino (correct spelling) women were all dressed in their native costumes. Many more photos, along with an update will appear in next week's paper.

Movin' with Moishe

Moishe Yess, Jewish Folk and Country Singer, has the crowd clapping along with one of his numbers. Yess delighted old and young, Jews and gentiles with his wit and talent. "Taste of Postville," the first annual blending of cultures was the perfect combination of fun, food, entertainment and education. The event surely acquainted guests with our melting pot of Jewish, Mexican, Russian, Ukrainian, Filipino, and Polish cultures. At the same time, however, guests were treated to German, Norwegian and Swedish fare that our community was founded on nearly 150 years ago.
