engineers). Fourth and most important, we must make an active effort to enable students to identify personal and societal barriers to their entry into careers which have not traditionally been pursued by their particular sex.

Several books and articles about sexism in education are now available. A brief bibliography of materials easily available to educators can be obtained from Dr. Walter S. Smith, 222 Strong Hall, Lawrence, Kansas 66045. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

CALL FOR EARTH SCIENCE EDUCATION MANUSCRIPTS

The Journal of Geological Education is seeking manuscripts on earth science teaching written by elementary and secondary earth science teachers. If you have an idea that has worked in the classroom, a unique way of individualizing instruction, or an outstanding earth science program, write it up and share it with other earth science educators.

Please send all manuscripts to Janet Wall, Associate Editor for Secondary School Education, Journal of Geological Education, 215 Glen Avenue, Salisbury, Maryland 21801.

Directions for manuscript preparation may be found on the inside back cover of the Journal and include the following suggestions:

Manuscripts should be typewritten and double spaced throughout;
The manuscript should be carefully checked for typing errors;
The original and one copy of the manuscript should be submitted;
Upon acceptance of an article, the author is requested to furnish a small photograph of himself to be published along with the article.
